Will A Faithful Christian Barely Be Saved? by Dennis Gulledge

Peter wrote, "For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God: and if it first begins at us, what shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God? And if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?" (1 Peter 4:17-18). These verses often come to mind when brethren have doubts relative to their ultimate salvation. The idea with some is that if anyone is saved it will barely be so. There is such a total misunderstanding.

"Judgement" is used here of an approaching "fiery" trial that Christians would experience (vs. 12). "House of God" is a designation for the church (1 Timothy 3:15), which would be affected in this trial. "Scarcely" denotes that which happens only with great difficulty. The context does not speak of the final Day of Judgement, but an approaching period of trouble that would affect the brethren at a time not far distant. Therefore, the apostle was not saying that a faithful Christian, if saved at all, would be saved by the narrowest of margins! Let us put that doubt out of our minds!

Peter had earlier said, "For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ" (2 Peter 1:11). These words were written shortly before the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70. The effects would be felt far and wide (Matthew 24:21-22). Acting upon Jesus' instructions to leave the city, Christians would be spared death, but it would be a period of extreme trouble for the churches at that time.
