You probably established house rules pretty early on: sleeping in late on Saturdays—okay; eating bean dip in the bathtub—not okay. It's comforting to have boundaries and know what's expected of us. The Bible sets clear boundaries for us. It also gives us lofty standards to live by. But God has empowered us through his Holy Spirit to do what he asks of us. Show your child how much you believe in him or her by setting rules and goals together. List what you'd like to accomplish in the next couple of days, by the end of the week, two weeks from now. Challenge each other to stick with it.
