Greetings from Ukraine.

This year we did not have a graduation class. Our current students have successfully completed their first year and have now moved on to their second year of study.

In May, the students completed 4 courses. I taught the course on the prophets Jeremiah and Ezekiel, and Jim Sherman taught the courses on the Gospel of John and the Epistles of John.

For the summer, our students are involved in practical ministry in their local churches. They are preparing sermons and lessons, leading meetings, and doing evangelistic work as much as possible. Because of the situation in our country, much of this ministry is done by phone. The students contact people who receive humanitarian aid, invite them to church activities, and visit those who have not attended church for a long time.
We are also continuing to recruit new students. At the moment, we have three potential students for the next academic year. We will make final decisions depending on how the situation develops.

At the same time, we are working on a new project—developing online Bible courses. We hope these courses will become an evangelistic tool, allowing people to study the Bible from home. Some of them may eventually become believers, join local churches, and perhaps become future students of the Institute.
We are trying to use every opportunity to minister remotely during this difficult time. Thankfully, internet access is available in most parts of Ukraine, which makes this possible.

We are also encouraged by the ministry of one of our graduates, Vadim, who is faithfully serving in a church in Poltava. Recently, the church celebrated five baptisms, which is a great testimony of God's work in that congregation. Vadim and his wife are doing a wonderful job in serving the people there, and we are thankful to see the church continuing to grow. It is a great encouragement to witness how God is using our graduates to strengthen local churches and reach new people with the Gospel.

Two weeks ago, our brother and teacher, Oleg Fofanov, visited us in Germany with his family. We were very happy to see them. It became a small family gathering and an encouraging time of fellowship for some of the Institute’s teachers.

We would also like to express our sincere gratitude to all of the sponsors who continue to support this ministry and make the work of the Bible Institute possible. We are especially thankful to Terry Harmon for overseeing and coordinating this program and for his faithful encouragement and support.

Please continue to pray for the recruitment of new students and for opportunities to share the pure Gospel with many people. We also ask you to pray for the war in Ukraine to come to an end soon. Unfortunately, the war has entered a new stage with the use of new technologies, and at this time we do not see signs of peace approaching. The situation continues to become more difficult.

Thank you for your prayers, your support, and your partnership in this ministry.

God bless, Denys Sopelnyk
