

PROFESSIONAL DISCLOSURE STATEMENT FOR STEPHANIE CAHILL, LMHCA

This statement is supplied for your information and protection. It provides information regarding my approach to counseling, education, training and credentials, your rights as a client, and my fees.

APPROACH TO COUNSELING: I believe there is tremendous potential for personal exploration and growth within each individual. My role as a counselor is to assist those individuals, couples, families, and groups that are motivated to change at least one aspect of their thoughts, feelings, or behaviors. As a licensed mental health counseling associate, it is my goal to use various approaches and techniques to best serve your needs. I believe that for progress to be made in therapy, you must find a sense of meaning and purpose for your life and find practical strategies and skills to help you through immediate life circumstances. In addition, for therapy to be beneficial, it is important for the client and counselor to agree upon and mutually commit to a general course of action, regardless of the particular approach or technique.

Therapy generally consists of three, possibly four, "phases." Phase one will primarily consist of listening to and understanding your current situation, problem, pain, crisis, or dilemma. Phase two focuses upon the isolation and further exploration of a particular issue (or two) that is most troubling to you. Phase three involves defining and implementing new, or improved, patterns and ways of thinking, feeling, and/or behaving regarding that issue. Phase four is the maintenance and adjustment of those new patterns as you work through and overcome the potential difficulties and setbacks of living out such patterns.

Sessions between a counselor and client may be very intimate emotionally and psychologically. Client and counselor understand that the relationship will remain on a professional level rather than a personal one. Contact will be limited to the paid sessions in the office or over the phone, or brief text/email with signed consent. The client and counselor shall not engage in physical contact, socialize, give gifts to each other, nor establish any relationship other than the stated counseling relationship. Counseling sessions focus exclusively on client concerns and all interactions will be solely for the client's benefit.

I practice under the code of ethics established by the American Association of Christian Counselors and the American Counseling Association.

CLIENT RIGHTS: As a client, you are rightfully entitled

- To expect that the staff has met the minimal qualifications of training and experience required by state law;
- To examine public records maintained by the State and to have the State confirm credentials of staff;
- To obtain a copy of the Code of Ethics, Oregon Revised Statutes (ORS), or Washington Administrative Code (WAC);
- To report complaints to the proper authorities (i.e. WA State Department of Health; American Counseling Association; American Association of Christian Counselors, etc.);
- To be free from being the object of discrimination on the basis of race, religion, gender, or other unlawful category while receiving these services;
- To obtain permission to view your file, by way of written request stating reason(s) to the therapist
- To be assured of privacy and confidentiality while receiving services as defined by rule and law, including the exceptions to confidentiality of information obtained in the course of services that include the following:
 - Reporting suspected abuse of a child, developmentally disabled person, or a dependent adult;
 - Reporting imminent danger to client or others, including (but not limited to) suicidal behavior or when a client is HIV positive and is unwilling to inform individuals with whom he/she is intimately involved;
 - Reporting information required in court proceedings, or by client's insurance company, or other relevant agencies;
 - Student consultation or supervision;
 - Defending claims brought by client against therapist;
 - Client has signed a release of information authorizing said disclosure.
