Dear Pastor George Hancock-Stefan,

It's pretty remarkable. A little surprising, actually. A vision—conceived 38 years ago—coming to fruition.

Here's how that vision has become a reality: Every program director involved in leading our summer camps is an alumni of UrbanPromise. All our leaders were once campers and teen leaders themselves. Now they have the responsibility of running things.

There's Tamia and Brian at Camp Freedom. Zion at Camp Peace. Brandon at Camp Spirit. Faith Solomon at Camp Faith. Tony Vega serves as our StreetLeader director, and his twin brother Albert oversees all our camp directors. All alumni! Collectively, there's over 100 years of UrbanPromise experience.

Developing leaders is slow, steady work. It takes time. But here we are...

To some, this might not sound like a big deal. But our charter mission was to develop local leaders. Since our inception, our dedicated team believed that if Camden was going to change, it would be led by those who grew up in the city and understood the issues confronting their community.

Camden is transformed by leaders who know Camden. And it's powerful to watch younger children look up to local role models—who transcended similar challenges—who are leading productive and fruitful lives.

When you give to UrbanPromise, you're giving to much more than good programs. You're giving to a vision and mission of nurturing the next generation of urban, Christian leaders. This is powerful. This brings about enduring change. Thank you for your generosity.

Grateful always
