Luke Salisbury hails from Massachusetts and is a professor at Bunker Hill College where he serves on the Board of Actors Shakespeare Project. Author of numerous books, with baseball being of prime interest, has resulted in his winning Best Fiction Book of the Year by USABookNews.

This book draws upon personal family history of a father and son who relive the complex tension and anxiety of the 24th New York Infantry. The after story sheds light on the upheaval and emotional traumas of the soldiers after they returned home, never to be the same again and captures the nation's mourning for its lost innocence.
