Scott is an independent scholar and 12 time award winning author of 27 published titles connected to Napoleonic and American military history. He is a graduate of TCU, and a Fellow in Le Souvenir Napoleonien International. His work on Lee has been named as part of the curriculum at the United States Command and General Staff College and on the Air Force Chief of Staff Reading List. He is also a winner of the Douglas Southall Freeman American History Award.

His presentation will reveal the foundational concepts of Lee's strategic, operational, and battlefield decisions, including the modifications necessary during the Civil War.
