Meet our Resource People...

Shelley Campagnola is the Executive Director of COMPASS Refugee Centre. Aside from various degrees and certificates in business, education, risk management, and theology, her experiences locally, nationally, and globally have given her a unique vantage point and motivation to reshape the narrative around forced displacement and migration. She loves when she sees eyes light up with hope by getting a yes on a refugee claim. Surpassing this is witnessing the unmatched joy of being reunited with children and spouses. The work of COMPASS Refugee Centre covers all this and is complete when people are living life beyond refuge.

The COMPASS Mission: To assist, accompany, and advocate for refugee claimants in our community. We also work with Protected Persons and Convention Refugees who have a successful refugee claim.

Forced to Flee, facilitated by MCC, is a simulation activity during which participants work together in refugee "family units", making difficult decisions along the journey to securing their future post-conflict. The workshop aims to transform thinking and inspire action around conflict, migration, and refugees.

Christina Edmiston works with sponsors and refugees in the pre-arrival stage of sponsorship, as they learn about the sponsorship process, fill out paperwork, and wait for the Canadian government to approve their case.

Paula Marshall works with sponsors and refugees in the post-arrival stage of sponsorship, supporting and resourcing groups as they help newcomers start their new lives in Canada.
