Lord, I Want To See You.

Tell me that You are on my side.
 Lord my God, in Your mercy
 say to my soul, "I am your Salvation."
 Speak to me, I want to listen to You.
 Open the ears of my heart.
 Say to my soul, "I am your salvation."
 I need this message.
 I want to grasp You.
 No, do not hide your face;
 whether I die or not matters little.
 I want to see You.

Question of the Week?

When has something I've said or done in accordance with my faith divided family or friends? How have I handled this? Could I have handled it better?

Force of Habit

Undeniably, we have the free power to do or not to do anything, before we are caught up in any habit. When we have used this freedom to do something, the sweetness and pleasure of the act holds our soul, and it is caught up in the sort of habit that it cannot break-by its own act of sin.

If you want to see what I mean, start trying not to swear: then you will see how the force of habit goes its own way.

-Against Fortunatus 22

Prayer: Lord, You are never needy, yet You are pleased with gain. You are never covetous, yet You exact interest on all You give us.

Who is Blessed Angela?

Blessed Mary Angela Truszkowska

We have dedicated the St. Turibius - St. Vincent de Paul Pantry to Blessed Angela – but who is she? Blessed Mary Angela Truszkowska, baptized as Sophia Camille, was born in Kalisz, Poland, on May 16, 1825. Members of noble families, her parents were well-educated. Her mother, a devout Catholic, had a great influence on her faith. As a child, Sophia was highly intelligent and generous. However, because of her fragile health, most of her education was completed at home under the supervision of private tutors. Her days as a young student were characterized by schoolwork and reading, as well as daily Mass, adoration of the Blessed Sacrament and nightly prayer. Her compassion for the underprivileged grew as she gained invaluable insight into the social ills and issues of her time from her father, a juvenile court judge.

Inspired to an Active Calling

In 1850, Sophia traveled with her ailing father to Germany, where he could visit the spas to restore his health. Following the example of her devout Catholic mother, Sophia was deeply faithful and had felt a calling to religious life. When they returned to Warsaw, she planned, despite her father's objections, to join a cloistered order of nuns. She looked forward to dedicating herself to a quiet routine of daily devotion.

Before returning home, she and her father visited the Cologne Cathedral, a towering Gothic structure with openwork stone spires and stunningly beautiful 14th-century stained glass. In this renowned sacred space, the product of centuries of human labor, Sophia experienced a conversion. From that moment, she knew that instead of joining a cloister, she would commit herself to working for those suffering at the margins of society.

Back in Warsaw, Sophia joined the Society of St. Vincent DePaul. With her father's financial support and the assistance of her cousin, Clothilde, Sophia spent her days working zealously for those in need as she continued to pray for God's guidance in her vocation.

Political unrest in Poland meant that society's most vulnerable people lacked access to food, shelter, or education. With a desire to confront these issues, and at the suggestion of her spiritual director, Fr. Honorat Kozminski, a Capuchin priest, Sophia also joined the Secular Franciscan Order, taking the name Angela as a symbol of her new life. She rented two attic rooms where she provided aid and comfort for abandoned women and orphaned children.

As Sophia's ministry grew, her good work and unmistakable devotion attracted public attention, almsgiving, and volunteerism. Each morning, Sophia would visit the Franciscans with the orphans in her care, stopping to pray at the altar of St. Felix of Cantalice, a Capuchin friar known for his joy. The people of Warsaw began to refer fondly to her group as "the children of St. Felix."

The Sisters of St. Felix

On November 21, 1855, Sophia consecrated herself totally to God, forging a new religious community steeped in the values and ideals of St. Francis of Assisi. She was inspired by the lives and spirituality of Saint Francis, Saint Clare, and Saint Felix of Cantalice. Each of them turned away from worldly comforts, at times even defying the wishes of their families, to follow God's call to a life of simplicity, prayer and service to all in need. Their ministries were nourished by time spent in prayer, providing the model for the contemplative-active community life. In recognition of the importance of St. Felix, this new community came to be called the Congregation of the Sisters of St. Felix of Cantalice, or the Felician Sisters.

Mother Angela, as Sophia came to be known, was elected to three successive terms as superior general. Her congregation had a clear mission: the Felician Sisters would work to ensure that "in all and by all, God may be known, loved and glorified." Even when she stepped down from her role because of failing health, she continued to watch over and guide her spiritual daughters. She heartily endorsed the plan to send Felician Sisters to North America, and she personally blessed the five pioneer sisters as they left Poland in 1874.

She died in Warsaw, Poland on October 10, 1899.

Yet her influence continued to grow. The work of this one woman inspired a sisterhood of thousands across the globe committed to live in compassionate service wherever there is a need.

Parish Mission Statement

We Believe that God is Love, and when we live in love we live in God and God lives in us! Therefore we, the Parish Family of Saint Turibius, dedicate ourselves to living out Christ's Great Commandment: we will love the Lord our God with all our heart, with all our soul, with all our mind, and with all our strength, and we will show our love for God by the way we love and care for one another. To this end, we will respond to our baptismal call, strengthened by the life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ and empowered by the Holy Spirit. As a Family of Faith that has an Attitude of Gratitude for the gifts God has given to us, we will share our time, our talent and our treasure with each other. We welcome into our parish family all people, because we believe that together we are the Body of Christ and together we can bring the love, peace, forgiveness, healing, and joy of Christ into our community in ways we never could have if we were to remain apart. May all who meet us, who worship with us, who work and play with us, know we are Christians by our love!
