

Seabreeze Camp 2019: A Post-Test

If you have flown on Delta, stayed at Hampton Inn, or shopped at Apple, you have received one of those Customer Surveys that say, "Please take five minutes to give feedback on your recent experience." I am asking you to take five minutes to do some post-camp evaluation. This one isn't for the camp office; it is for you. Based on the three goals I suggested for camp, how did you do? A few questions for reflection....

Seabreeze 2019: A Time for Spiritual Growth

- * Which sermon did God use to convict me of a needed change in my life?
- * Which song encouraged me to face difficulties in God's strength, not my own?
- * Which service encouraged to greater praise to God?
- * What impact will Seabreeze Camp 2019 make in my life from March through December? Will I continue the growth that I started, or was it only a temporary emotional response?

Seabreeze 2019: A Time for Christian Fellowship

- * Was my fellowship during Seabreeze Camp 2019 God-honoring?
- * Which conversation helped me grow closer to God? Did I try to say something this week to encourage a struggling brother or sister?
- * If Jesus had been standing there, would I have shared the "news" that I shared? Would I have made the comments that I made?
- * Now that Seabreeze Camp 2019 is over, how can I continue to show Christ-like love to my fellow believers? Is there someone who would benefit from a card, an email, or a phone call?

Seabreeze 2019: A Time for Giving

- * Did my giving at Seabreeze Camp 2019 reflect a spirit of joy and thankfulness to God?
- * Did God impress me to give more to missions than I had planned to give? Did I obey His prompting?
- * Will I support my local church with the same spirit of joy and generosity that I showed during camp?

The real test of camp meeting is its impact in March-December. When the tabernacle is empty, when the snowbirds have flown home, and when life is back to “normal,” will my life show the lasting impact of Seabreeze Camp 2019? I hope the answer will be “Yes.” If so, Seabreeze Camp 2019 will be well worth every penny!
