“The Restorative Justice Coalition of Oregon has served as a critical touchpoint for me and any of my colleagues in education, both practitioners and leaders in restorative justice. I would be honored to serve and give back to the organization and statewide community that has supported me over many years through both collaboration and learning opportunities, and as a critical advocate for restorative work throughout the state in our youth- and adult-serving programs and systems. I am actively working to create networks around the state for educators and foster connections between our educational partners and community based organizations supporting restorative work in communities and schools. I hope to contribute by expanding the RJCO supports, services, and networks across the state in membership and education. I also hope to engage in community action and advocacy as I work on legislative concepts, rule updates, and other policy practices to encourage the use of restorative justice in any disciplinary action in schools and in comprehensive safe and inclusive school initiatives.”
