

TIFF ORTAMOND

Tiff Ortamond is the Director of Restorative Justice at Resolve Center for Dispute Resolution and Restorative Justice, where she leads the development and implementation of restorative practices across community, school, and justice-based settings. Her work centers on fostering accountability, repairing harm, and creating meaningful opportunities for dialogue.

An U.S. Army veteran, Tiff brings a grounded and relational approach shaped by experiential understanding of the necessity of peace building developed through her military experience. Her foundational orientation toward restorative justice was further developed through work with the Tla'amin Nation in British Columbia, and through residing within intentional communities in rural Oregon.

She holds a B.A. in Environmental Justice from Pitzer College and an M.A. in Gender, Spirituality, and Social Justice from California Institute of Integral Studies.