She calls these volunteers "counselors" but you do not need to be a licensed counselor to do this. By counselor I think she means like an advocate/mentor figure. Someone to be available at the center to talk and give support to young girls/couples that may have no support system during their pregnancy and may need help getting questions answered and who are seeking direction. Volunteers are needed to organize the office, clean the office. Clean up the property. (volunteers can come do these things on the weekends as well as long as they call to set up a time with brenda so she can be there). We are always in need of baby donations (diapers, wipes, clothes, bottles, formula, etc). They are always in need of groups or churches that will fundraise for them (they have a fundraiser that involves getting plastic bottles from brenda and having people fill them up with loose change and returning them). Volunteers are needed to assemble layettes at the center (baby essential gift bundles) that go home to every mother.. Anyone who has counseling, ultrasound experience, or experience with babies would be much needed!
