

Dear BCC Family;

As we have all seen, governments, business and even churches are taking unprecedented steps in closing their doors to help prevent the spread of Coronavirus. BCC is no different. The events of recent days have left us with the painful decision to close the church buildings, including the office. While the church buildings may be closed, the work of the ministry is not; nor is our need to continue to support the church.

The church staff is working remotely to ensure that we remain connected and engaged with the needs of the congregation. The building and property remain our responsibility to steward well. We continue to support our missionaries in the Kingdom work that they do.

We would ask that you prayerfully consider your continued financial support of the church during these critical days. As a church we have not spent a great deal of time from the pulpit teaching on giving. We have trusted The Lord for His provision and He has moved mightily in our midst. Thank you for your faithfulness and obedience.

As we are not currently meeting on Sundays, we have established 2 ways to continue your support to BCC. The first is to mail your giving to the church address. While the office is closed, we are still accessing mail, as well as email and voicemails if you call the office. We have also just set up online giving. It is available on our website under the "Support BCC" tab. You may also reach it directly at www.bccdelmar.org/support-bcc. Donations made on-line will be used in the same manner as our regular Sunday offering – to support the on-going work of the church and help us to maintain our budget while we work diligently to support the church family during this critical time.

The Elders have determined that we will reduce our spending to those expenses essential to maintaining the ministry of BCC.

God will sustain us. He is faithful. We are hopeful.

In His service;

The Elders of BCC
