

Built to be Filled! (Part 2)- Going Deeper Questions

Sunday, October 4, 2026

Question #1: Where is God asking me to obey before I fully understand? What instruction from God have I been hesitant to follow because I don't know how it will turn out? Do I have any fears about what might happen if I did obey in this area? If so, what are they? In what way are they stopping my obedience?

Question #2: Am I truly united with the people God has put around me? Is there anyone I need to forgive, encourage, or choose unity with instead of allowing division? Am I protecting unity or am I allowing my preferences, or offenses to become more important than the mission?

Question #3: If someone looked at how I spent my time last week, would they see that I made God a priority, or gave Him what was left? What is currently taking up space in my life that God is asking me to give to Him? What do my habits, priorities, attention, and schedule reveal about what I have made room for? Is there something I may have to say “no” to so I can intentionally say “yes” to God? If so, what does this look like in my life?

Question #4: Am I seeking the presence of God for what He wants to do in me, or what He wants to do through me? Where have I become more of a spectator than a participant? If God answered my prayer to “use me”, what area of my life would I have to make available to Him?

Question #5: If God filled me and empowered me this week, who around me would be different because of it? Where is God calling me to be His witness, in my home, school, workplace, community, or neighborhood? Who is one person God may already be putting in front of me that I may be overlooking? What step can I take this week to begin to be a witness to them?

Challenge:

1. Set aside 10-20 minutes everyday this week with no distractions and pray “ Holy Spirit here I am, Fill me, lead me, I am available”
2. Identify one person you have been disconnected from, frustrated with or maybe just haven't made an effort to connect with and pray for them. Taking that one simple step towards unity can make a huge impact!
3. Ask God every morning this week, “who can I impact for You today?” Then follow through and intentionally bless someone, it could be encouragement, praying with them, meeting a need, even inviting them to church. Just simply show them the love of Jesus.