Help End The Crazy

Albert Einstein is famous for his definition of insanity: “Doing the same thing over and over again and expecting different results.” If he was right, then raking leaves is just crazy. But, you weekend warriors know as well as I do, that waiting until all the leaves are on the ground; and potentially trapped under a blanket of snow is even worse.

Don't get me wrong, I love autumn. The leaves changing color and the cool temperatures are my idea of the perfect time of year. But then, those beautiful orange, yellow and red leaves begin to fall. I like yard work too... at least the first three or four rounds of leaf blowing, raking and tarp dragging. Then my mind begins devising all sorts of ways to eradicate those never ending leaves (I suppose camp would look a little funny if I cut all the trees down).

Secret Weapon

They say that the grass always looks greener on the other side of the fence. Late fall here at camp seems that way when I look at the trees and count the number of days we have spent outside trying to round up all the leaves. But, we have our eyes on a secret weapon.

As 2014 draws to a close we need your help to purchase a brand new turbine blower attachment for our Steiner mower. The turbine blower will be a tremendous addition to our leaf eradicating arsenal. In fact, it will become the best tool we have for moving those leaves. And of course, we love when our tools and equipment are suited for more just than one job. The new turbine blower will also be an excellent way of cleaning our blacktop and walkways as well as clearing the ice rink of snow in the winter.

Invest

$4,800 will purchase our new turbine blower, two back pack leaf blowers and brand new rakes. Will you join me and invest in our new arsenal to eradicate leaves, clear walkways and move snow? Please send your tax-deductible contribution to camp with “leaves” in the memo.
