

The first Sunday that Keith and I decided to visit St. B's I'm pretty sure I cried through at least half the service. I was, and still am, so taken with the beauty of the liturgy, and how every last word, note of music and gesture was so full of meaning and thoughtfulness.

Since we both are vocationally involved in Christian events and conferences, we were in need of a church where the focus was both contemplative and community-oriented; where value was placed on people over programming. And because we both have a deep desire to see the needs of others met, we were grateful for the missional focus of the body here.

As a family we financially contribute each month and pledge our support yearly so that others in our community will be able to continue to experience the rest, peace and beauty that our souls find through being part of the life of this parish, and to ensure that as a church family we will be able to continue actively partnering with organizations locally and globally that are meeting the physical and spiritual needs of others. We pray that you will consider giving as well.
