JANUARY MISSION FOCUS Everstand (UM Home for Children)

Everstand's Caminos program provides compassion and support to youth who have recently migrated to the United States. They have made the journey here for many reasons, such as escaping violent communities or abusive relationships in their home country, seeking opportunities for reunification with family, or gaining access to education. They provide short-term shelter to recently migrated youth under 18 years of age whose lives are in jeopardy after fleeing alone from countries around the globe. These countries are overrun by organized crime, violence, human trafficking, and persecution, and have some of the highest homicide rates in the world. Many of the youth that come to be in Everstand's care enter the country to be reunified with family members already living in the United States.
