Library Update

Greetings from your library! If you missed the last two books of Stephen Bly's series Fortunes of the Black Hills we presented in a previous newsletter, you'll want to finish up with these two books.

(5) Last of the Texas Camp: Dacee June Fortune's mother died when she was eight, and for the next 23 years she stood at her father's side. Even after she married, Daddy Brazos was her strength, her protection, and her idol. Now, daddy is dying. "Maybe it's me." Dacee June walked to the head of the stairs. "I just can't let go, Sammy. It's different for you boys. You've been out on your own. You know how to take care of yourself. He's always been here to help me. I've been his little girl my whole life. Sammy, I don't know if I can survive without being his little girl. It sounds horrible, doesn't it? I'm 31-years-old, married, and I have three wonderful daughters. But I don't know what I'm going to do without him. I really don't." (6) The Next

Roundup: The story of the Fortune family sees a new beginning with the grandchildren of Brazos Fortune, especially his grandson Frank, and their place of prominence and disgrace in the Black Hills of 1875-1905. As the weight of all the Fortune family tradition, history, and faith bears down upon them, some of them bear the legacy well and some fail miserably; some trust in God faithfully and others will wander down the wilder and wider paths.

Their story is not only of the history-making births, but also of the support of the community of Carlisle, Iowa, and of the Christian faith of a family that has captured the imagination of the nation and the world.
