

Why Great Commission Coaching?

53% of pastors do not feel that seminary or Bible college prepared them adequately.

70% do not have someone they consider a close friend.

50% do not meet regularly with an accountability person or group.

72% only study the Bible when preparing for sermons or lessons.

21% spend less than 15 minutes a day in prayer — the average is 39 minutes per day.

16% are “very satisfied” with their prayer life.

47% are “somewhat satisfied”.

37% are either “somewhat dissatisfied” or “very dissatisfied” (spending more time in quiet prayer or listening to God versus making requests was correlated with higher satisfaction).

44% of pastors do not take a regular day off .

90% say they have not received adequate training to meet the demands of ministry.

85% have never taken a Sabbatical.

Pastors and Church leaders are generally good at what they have been trained to do. They lack training in the majority of things they have to do to lead a church to health and growth.

I met A. B. In the 80's when, out of nowhere, he decided to come to N. E. Florida and start a church. He was successful far beyond anyone's expectation. A B. Is simply not afraid to try something different for the sake of the Gospel. He has 50 years of wisdom to share. A goodly part of his impact is because he is a net-worker par excellence. When you have met A. B., you're not going to forget him. If you're interested in growing a ministry, A. B. Is a priceless resource. James Brown, Ph. D., Florida licensed psychologist

“Life-on-life relational discipleship centered upon the gospel and focused on grace is the most productive and fruitful way to start and grow a church. A. B. Scott is gifted to mentor, coach and build leaders for kingdom work.” Rev. Richard A. Cooper Ponte Vedra Presbyterian Church

“Sometimes those of us who labor for the LORD need an experienced eye, one who has ministered in the Church for years, a servant of Christ Jesus who can bring a critical, yet helpful word to strengthen one's ministry. A. B. Scott and his Great Commission Coaching Network can do that.”

Dr. C. Gregory Darden, Senior Pastor
Faith Presbyterian Church, Germantown, TN

A. B. Scott has the unique ability to challenge people to grow in their faith while not forgetting the call to go and make disciples. He understands the value of relationships inside and outside the church. God has blessed A. B. with the wisdom to think strategically about the church as well as the ability and patience to develop church leaders. Bill Johns, Youth Director Ponte Vedra Presbyterian Church (1995 - 2003).
