

June Board Report

Wins:

It has been busy getting ready for summer events at the church. I have had several meetings with individuals since our last meeting about what it means to live in the freedom of Christ. It is a big win when you see people not only growing in their faith but also sharing it and putting legs on their faith. I had the opportunity to speak last week at Community Alliance in Butler, which went very well, and I was thankful to help out. A personal win is that I finished and received approval for my first class of the doctoral research project. I now have ten weeks to work ahead and get s much approved for the next class as allowed. I am currently working on an exhaustive literature review on ministry sustainability and burnout.

Challenges:

No real challenges at this time.

Goals:

I am working on getting everything set up for my study break. I plan to spend the first two weeks setting up my preaching schedule and the second half preparing for the vision and culture conversation.

Needs Discussed:

Teaching Rotation

Housing Allowance
