Florencia Garza Infante | Oriflame

Biography	Currently working at a Swedish multinational (operations in 60 countries around the world) beauty company as Regional General Counsel, Regulatory and Corporate Affairs LATAM in charge of all legal matters related to the different countries in Latin America. Prior to that, working at the largest baking company in the world based in Mexico City as senior managing counsel in the area of M&A and commercial contracts for the group. Formerly worked in-house at Nestle as part of the Zone Americas Commercial Competence Center (shared service center, based in Los Angeles that provides commercial legal assistance for the Markets, Regions and Stand Alone Businesses in the Americas (drafting and negotiation of all sorts of commercial agreements and transactions including mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures, real estate deals)). Prior to this, at the Chicago office of Mayer Brown, LLP in the securitization group and prior to that, worked for the third largest cement company in the world as part of the international corporate legal group. I graduated magna cum laude from law school in 2002 and shortly thereafter started to work for a very important Mexican law firm in the corporate area. While working at this law firm, I received an invitation from CEMEX, S.A.B. de C.V. (?CEMEX?) to join its legal department. It has been one of the best experiences of my life. Being a part of the international corporate legal group gave me the opportunity to work on the different corporate matters of the company providing service to every single area of the holding company. I also got the opportunity to travel and live abroad as part of the several mergers and acquisitions done by the company where my language skills and the education I received abroad during my schooling years were a great asset. I then decided that it was time to go to graduate school. And so, I selected the LLM/Kellogg program from Northwestern University which combines law and business in one degree. This program offers a unique opportunity to study both business law and management techniques at two leading schools--the Northwestern University School of Law and the Kellogg School of Management.
