Parents getting away with child neglect

This visual shows the number of child neglect cases reported to the Welfare Department with a breakdown of the gender of the children involved.

Some of these cases had ended tragically but what's more shocking is that no parent has ever been prosecuted for child neglect. Perhaps it's time for stricter laws to stop parents from neglecting their children.

Bomb-making plans found on terror suspect's phone

KUALA LUMPUR — Another terror suspect has been nabbed by police and this time a photograph detailing instructions on how to make a bomb was found on his mobile phone.

The Turkish national did not have a passport or a visa but two of his compatriots were found to be holding travel documents, believed to be fake.

All three have been handed over to the federal police at Bukit Aman.

Authorities remain tight-lipped over the investigations.

Two policemen came upon the 30-year-old suspect when he tried to run away during a routine crime prevention check.

If the Turks are confirmed terrorists, it would be the third batch of arrests in two weeks involving foreigners.
