Episode 13 – “How We Build Personal Mission Statements”

Questions and Comments

Do you have a question for Pastors Jimmy and Kim? Or, maybe you have a comment or idea? They are excited to hear from you! Please email us at podcast@tfc.org OR you can use the comment section of our website!

Overview

For most of us, attempting to find or define identity is a process that largely depends upon what we do – career, parenting, acts of service, you get the idea. In contrast, however, when we consider the legacy or outcomes of life, we don't tend to think about a list of accomplishments. Instead, we typically desire to be known for things that really matter – things like our kindness, generosity, relationship with God, or love for friends and family. The trick is recognizing that true success doesn't come from the list of accomplishments, but rather from a life lived in alignment with who God says we are and with the outcomes we truly desire. This is where a personal mission statement is super helpful!

On this episode Pastors Jimmy and Kim talk through their journey of recognizing the need to establish a personal mission statement, and then dive straight into some practical steps for how to do just that! From learning how to be empowered by who God says you are, to recognizing that where you are right now is only one piece of the whole story, to knowing when it's the right season to revisit and revise that mission statement – this episode is packed full of wisdom and encouragement! We know you're going to love it!

Questions for Reflection

- Think of a time when God clearly showed you something about your identity?
- How did that experience shape your thoughts, emotions, and behaviors?
- How would you encourage someone who is struggling to understand their identity?
