

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE — APRIL 2026

Epifanes appoints E&P Marine Inc. as Manufacturers' Representatives for the Southeast USA and Latin America

Thomaston, Maine — Epifanes, the world-renowned leader in premium marine coatings, continues to expand its North American footprint with the appointment of E&P Marine Inc. as its manufacturers' representatives for the Southeast United States and Latin America.

Growing demand for Epifanes' topside coatings—including its advanced polyurethane systems—has accelerated the company's strategic push into new markets. Following significant adoption by boatyards and professional applicators throughout 2025, Epifanes is positioning itself for strong continued growth in 2026.

"After watching this legacy brand evolve for many years—and now seeing the performance and acceptance from major yards and applicators—we began discussing how we could help expand their presence," said Louis Diaz, VP of Sales and Business Development at E&P Marine. "We are excited to partner with Epifanes to bring world-class solutions to the challenges of topside coatings for our customers."

Joel Valley, National Sales Manager of Epifanes USA, added, "The future looks bright for Epifanes. Aligning with companies like E&P Marine Inc.—organizations with a strong reputation and a culture that mirrors our own—is a key strategy for scaling our growth. Our success begins with education and helping the industry understand how to do things better as we introduce new technologies. E&P Marine is the right partner to help us grow."

Epifanes has recently introduced new products designed to bring fresh innovation to the DIY market, further broadening its appeal and accessibility.

Since 1902, Epifanes has set the global standard for beauty, preservation, and performance in marine coatings. The company remains committed to developing systems and processes that support marine professionals and boat owners worldwide.

E&P Marine Inc. is a global marine manufacturers' representative group offering high-quality boating products along with reliable nationwide and international sales and service support.
