We Are Back and Fully Operational

New ownership is in place and are a focused organization with the financial backing needed to move forward properly. This period has been about stabilizing the business, now the focus is on execution.

We have a clear and aligned vision, an operating structure in place, which ensures the stability needed to propel X Shore towards a legacy brand. The production at our facility in Nyköping is fully operational.

What this means for you:

- We are ready to support with service and spare parts
- We are re-engaging across customers, dealers, and suppliers
- We are building the business on a more sustainable and commercially sound foundation

Service and parts will be available on a structured basis. This is important. We intend to support you now, and in the years ahead.

Why we are confident going forward:

- 7 years of real-world experience across Europe, North America, APAC, and Scandinavia
  - A proven production setup now back in operation
  - Continued progression of our technology platform based on real world experience
- Owners with the financial strength to support not just short tem but long-term growth

We are building on what has already been proven, and addressing what needed to be fixed.

Our ambition is simple:

To support you, deliver on our commitments, and continue to drive the transition to electric boating.
