

ENOUGH.

The brutal death of George Floyd shook our sensibilities but not our beliefs or core values. Our resolve to protect people everywhere from injustice and oppression has only been strengthened. As a civil justice organization, we cannot and will not remain silent.

CAALA is saddened and angered by the repeated killings of unarmed Black men and women. The deaths are tragic, unnecessary, and each life is an incalculable loss. We mourn with the families and communities.

The 3,100 sister and brother trial lawyers who are the Consumer Attorneys Association of Los Angeles advocate for justice, believe in the rule of law, and work tirelessly to protect the rights of people harmed by powerful governmental and corporate interests.

We categorically condemn the killings of George Floyd, Breonna Taylor, Ahmaud Arbery, and countless others who are victims of police brutality and racism.

As lawyers for People, we stand together with all victims of racism and fight to bring about needed change. We support them, comfort them, honor them and stand up for them. We call on all trial lawyers to join the fight for civil rights and encourage each member to do their part to help the movement towards true Change, Equality, and Justice.

For more than 70 years our association has been committed to provide quality education to trial attorneys. These are not just words to us. Words are not enough. Action is required.

We vow to utilize our resources more than ever to educate our members on the injustices posed by systemic racism and the means available under the law to bring about justice and accountability for victims.
