Timothy J. Langella, Esq. founded LDRS in 2015 after thirty two-years of practice as a trial attorney at two Boston law firms, General Counsel at a publicly traded medical device company, and Chief of the Business, Technology & Economic Development Division at the Massachusetts Attorney General's Office. With over three decades of analyzing, assessing, litigating, arbitrating and mediating complex business disputes and personal injury/products liability claims for both plaintiff and defendant clients, Mr. Langella knows first-hand how the adversarial nature of litigation can result in cases becoming overly expensive and time consuming. As a mediator, neutral arbitrator or independent case evaluator, Mr. Langella now works to help others reach fair, reasoned and amicable resolutions to their disputes.
