

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONJONATHAN J. FOLEY, JR.*NOVEMBER 17, 1994

Jonathan J. Foley, Jr., both a gentleman and a gentle man, was known for most of his seventy-five years, to his family and friends, as Jack.

A native of Brooklyn, New York, Jack moved to Nashville as a young child and after attending high school at Montgomery Bell Academy and college at Vanderbilt University, was commissioned an Ensign in the United States Navy.

Upon commissioning, Jack served in Hawaii, aboard the cruiser U.S.S. San Francisco. He was on the bridge as watch officer on Sunday, December 7, 1941, and became a first hand participant in the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor. Jack took any opportunity given to him to share the events and his experiences during that historic day with others.

Jack served throughout World War II in the Pacific campaign and was awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received in combat and a Presidential Citation for bravery.

After the war, Jack was discharged with the rank of Commander and returned to Nashville to attend Vanderbilt School of Law, where he received an L.L.B. and J.D. Degree.

Jack remained in the naval reserves during his years as a practicing attorney, as a member of the Judge Advocate General Corp and was admitted to practice before the United States Supreme Court in 1952 and the United States Court of Military Appeals in 1955. Jack served as President of the Tennessee Council of Navy Leagues before retiring from the reserves in 1979.

Jack was an avid sportsman and was a founder of the Middle Tennessee Field Trial Association.

As a devoted husband and friend to his wife, Harriet, Jack was blessed with a daughter, Betty, son, Jon, five adoring grandchildren, and two loving step-grandchildren.

I first met Jack upon his re-entering private practice, after many years as staff counsel for Attorney's Title Company. First as his law clerk, then his associate and finally as his partner, I was indeed privileged to draw on Jack's unequalled knowledge of real estate law in the development of my legal education.

Jack and I remained friends and law partners for seventeen years until his retirement in 1989. His ability, honesty, caring wit and patience were demonstrated to me throughout the years that we were together and remain a corner stone in the building of my legal career. I indeed feel fortunate to have been allowed to share Jack with Harriet and his family during our years in practice together.

His retirement from the active practice of law did not mark an end to Jack's giving to others. He volunteered his time and energy as a member of St. George's Episcopal Church and an active volunteer for St. Luke's Community Center.

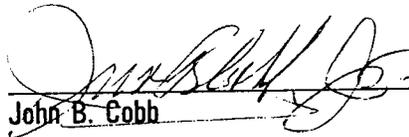

Jack is one of those rare individuals who will always be remembered and will never be replaced.

The Nashville Bar Association is richer due to the personal contribution it received from Jack Foley. It is members such as Jack, which have caused the association to be a role model for other bar associations.

Respectfully submitted,
