

CARL BETTINGER has litigated hundreds of personal injury, medical malpractice and nursing home neglect claims. He is the author of Twelve Heroes, One Voice: Guiding Jurors to Courageous Verdicts (Those interested should look to the independent publisher, Trial Guides, www.trialguides.com, not Amazon (the book is not self-published)). Both in his own work and when consulting for others, Carl focuses on bringing cases alive, utilizing a variety of non-conventional approaches, including those from improvisational acting, psychodrama and storytelling. In recent trials, he sang part of his closings. Before attending University of New Mexico Law School, he went to medical school at Boston University School of Medicine and then completed an internal medicine residency at The University of New Mexico. In his spare time, he goes fishing. A couple years ago he caught an 80 pound tarpon on a fly rod.
