Problem: Today's Challenges

- 46.6 million adults in the U.S. lived with any mental illness in 2017
- 11 million have SMI
- MDE and SMI among young adults rising
- Higher rates of suicide AND people with serious depression and/or psychotic disorders have a rate 25x that of the general public
- Health inequity: Those with SMI die 10 years earlier than the general population of general medical conditions
- Corrections inequity: 2 million people with SMI are incarcerated every year
  - Only 1/3 of those will get any treatment for mental illness
  - Creates a revolving door of incapacity due to SMI, incarceration, with consequences of inability to be stably housed or employed

Problem: Today's Challenges (con't)

- 41.5% (1.3 million) of youth (12-17) in need of treatment received treatment for depression
- 42% of adults with AMI (19.8 million) received mental health services in the past year
- 66.7% of adults with SMI (7.5 million) received mental health services in the past year

History of The Minority Fellowship Program

In 1973 the Center for Minority Health at the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) was alarmed by the lack of mental health professionals who could provide culturally competent care to an increasing racial/ethnic and culturally diverse population, with ever expanding needs for mental health services and research. This same year, the Center for Minority Mental Health invited the American Sociological Association (ASA) to submit a grant proposal to support doctoral level training of ethnic and racial minority sociologists. In 1974, a small training grant was awarded to ASA from the National Institute of Mental Health for the purpose of supporting doctoral education for ethnic/minority researchers and clinicians.
