Using his chainsaw, Leatherface cut through one of the tires, which caused the van to crash, killing Ryan on impact. After Nikki's wounds, he chases Heather to a nearby carnival where Deputy Carl is patrolling the area. While at the police department, Heather began digging files in the Sawyer family and learning about the family's murder history and how they were killed. The sheriff and Hartman sent officers to investigate Carson's estate by phone. Authorities reported the results of his discovery. He found Nikki hiding in the freezer, but accidentally shot her in the head before he was killed by leatherface from the officer's corpse and used it to create a new meat mask. The discovery of Officer Hartman vowed to end the remaining Sawyers, and Heather left the station and met with her lawyer at the bar. He told her that Leatherface was her cousin who survived the burning of the farmhouse, Heather fled the bar when Hartman found her and ran into Carl's deputy in his patrol car. After that, Leatherface and Heather returned to the Carson Estate, where Heather read a letter from Verna. It told her that her real name was Edith Rose Sawyer, that Leatherface lived in the basement behind a metal door and he would protect her for the rest of his life, but asked her to look after him in return.
