Course Description and Objectives

The design of this course features a breadth of general reading, independent work on non-western music topics/areas and requires the integration of student contributions to course content, direction, and leadership. It is my hope that this seminar will foster professional development for graduate students by requiring you to practice your discussion-leading and teaching/presenting skills, engage in the formal exchange of collegial feedback, critically evaluate scholarly articles and world music textbooks, and design and present a lecture on a topic of interest. From time to time we will have guest lecture/demonstration by ethnomusicology graduate students or a visiting scholar/performer (see course schedule for details).

Course Delivery Format: This is a Blended course, otherwise known as hybrid or mixed-mode courses. That means that a portion of the traditional face-to-face instruction is replaced by web-based online learning. In the course schedule listed below, the * means that class will not meet on this day, but assignments will be submitted via Canvas.

No required text. Readings on World Music traditions will come from the following textbooks and will be posted on Canvas unless otherwise indicated.

Excursions in World Music, (6th Edition), by Bruno Nettl, Pearson, 2011.

Soundscapes: Exploring Music in a Changing World (3rd Edition), by Kay Kaufman Shelemay, Norton, W. W. & Company, Inc, 2015.

Teaching Music Globally: Experiencing Music, Expressing Cultures, by Patricia Shehan Campbell, Oxford University Press 2007 (or other selection from this series).

Worlds of Music: An Introduction to the Music of the World's Peoples (6th Edition), edited by Jeff Titon, Cengage Learning, 2016.

World Music: Traditions and Transformations (2nd edition), by Michael Bakan, New York, NY: McGraw-Hill Publishing, 2012.

Additional readings from journals, books, and videos, podcasts, etc. available on the internet.

Course Activities:

This course requires active participation from all students in class meetings and online. Students will be asked to participate individually and in groups of two or more for class discussions, activities and presentations. Students should do all assigned readings and come to class prepared to participate fully in all discussions.

Classroom (or online) discussion setting is the seminar, which is a forum for practicing our pedagogical skills, as well as discussing content, techniques, and theories. The aim is to develop pedagogical skills through practice and to demonstrate your ability to research a topic beyond material contained within the textbook alone.

Course Evaluation (point system):

Three (3) Worksheets (credit /no credit), class participation in discussions/activities. The first three worksheets out of six total are to be uploaded by the date indicated in the module. After that, worksheets do not need to be uploaded, though students should still complete them for use in studying for the listening quizzes, class discussions, and other assignment - 15 points for each uploaded assignment (40 points total)

Six (6) Assignments submitted via Canvas – 100 points total (graded, up to 20 points each)

Three (3) Online Listening Quizzes – 60 points (graded, up to 20 points each)

Total possible points earned: 200 points

200-170=A; 169-135=B; 134-100=C; less than 100=F

All written assignments are to be:

- double-spaced, using 12-point font for body copy (headings/subheads, if used, can be slightly larger; footnotes can be slightly smaller), with
- pages having 1-inch margins on all four sides and numbered (no number needed for first page),
- clearly labeled with student name, course number, and submission date preceding the main title or assignment name.

All online submissions should use collegiate-level vocabulary, employ a scholarly literary style, and should not include language or style of a colloquial nature (i.e., no incomplete or run-on sentences, misspellings, slang, etc.). All quotations, references, examples, illustrations, tables, etc. must be properly and consistently formatted. No unattributed sources are acceptable. In other words, unattributed sources such as Wikipedia-The Free Encyclopedia cannot count as one of your sources.
