Leanne Lewis

Leanne has over 25 years of experience in sales, sales management, leadership and management education. She earned an honours business administration degree from the Ivey Business School at the Western University, in Ontario. After graduation, she joined the faculty, teaching a first-year business course and acting as a consultant to businesses in many different industries. She then began a sales career and took on senior leadership positions involving managing all aspects of operations, including recruiting, leading, developing and coaching teams of high-performing employees.

She started her own coaching and facilitation company in 2007 and has delighted clients around the world with her open and engaging facilitation skills. Her experience with clients spans many industries, including financial services, retail, manufacturing, telecom and health care.

Leanne is an avid runner and cyclist, and when she is not working, she enjoys watching her three busy children compete in numerous activities in Vancouver, British Columbia.
