Eastern Tourism Initiative Wins Governor's Award

Eastern West Virginia Community and Technical College was awarded the 2018 Governor's Award for Regional Cooperation, Wednesday evening at the Governor's Conference on Tourism in Morgantown. The award was in recognition of the Potomac Highlands Regional Tourism Initiative, an eight-county effort to enrich tourism opportunities and partner collaborations between Grant, Hampshire, Hardy, Mineral, Pocahontas, Randolph and Tucker Counties.

Dr. Charles Terrill, President of EWVCTC, expressed his enthusiastic appreciation yesterday stating the Potomac Highlands is "a great region" with "great partners and good people."

Working for the past year and a half, Ethan Serr, the AmeriCorps worker who was assigned to EWVCTC, began the process of pulling together a tourism asset database, planning annual regional tourism summits and creating the Highlands Hiking Challenge. State Department of Education Releases Performance 'Scorecard' for Public Schools

By Jean A. Flanagan Moorefield Examiner

The West Virginia Department of Education recently released the 2018 Balanced Scorecard Accountability Rating for each school system in the state. The ratings for Hardy County Schools have administrators scratching their heads.

"Although standardized testing and data collection provides us with a lot of useful information, we also consider the various talents and strengths of our students and are focused on providing opportunities that foster success for all," said Hardy County Schools Superintendent Sheena VanMeter.

According to the WVDE, "the Balanced Scorecard is designed to provide a clear snapshot of replace the No Child Left Behind Act, which was enacted in 2002. The Scorecard measures several factors of students in grades 3 through 8 and 11. In the elementary (grades 3 - 6) and middle school grades (grades 7 - 8), the Scorecard measures performance in English/Language Arts and Math, benchmark indicators in both English/Language Arts and Math, English Learner Progress, Attendance and Behavior.

In 11th grade, the scorecard measures English/Language Arts and Math Performance, Attendance, 4-Year Cohort Graduation Rates. 5-Year Cohort Graduation Rates, On Track to

Students are assigned a point value based on whether they exceed, meet, partially meet or do not meet standards. The sum of those points are divided by the number of students tested to find overall points. Overall points are divided by 125, the total possible points and that number is the percentage of points used to determine the category.

We Welcome Visitors To Heritage Weekend

Once again Hardy County welcomes visitors to the unique and history-laden place in which we live. Having been settled since the 18th Century, our ancestors survived wars with the Indians, the British and each other. They survived droughts and floods. These conflicts helped form the foundation for our beliefs, our homes, our ability to survive and our way of life.

Over 250 years later, there are structures still standing which have been dated to the 1770s. The locations of forts and battles are documented. Old homes have hidey holes in which the family valuables were stored when the Yankees paid a visit. And there are many stories about ancestors who left a legacy of hard work, humor and the ability to come back from adversity.

The people of Hardy County also have a history of supporting causes and projects which make life a little more bearable. In the 1920s the fledgling Moorefield Women's Club began a circulating library located in the home of Mrs. M. M. Harwood. When that location was outgrown, the library was moved to the second floor of the McCoy Theater building until growth again required a move to larger quarters.

A lot was purchased and a building constructed on the site of Miss Mamie Alexander's store and photography studio. (Today, this is the law office of Attorney Joyce Stewart.) This was West Virginia's first small town public library building and was completed in 1952. Then there was the matter of paying off the debt which today doesn't seem like a lot, but at that time was great at $12,000. In the fall of 1953, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Pryce-Jones offered to open Mill Island to the public, charging fifty cents with all proceeds going toward the library debt. They raised $100 and this was the beginning of Fifteen Years Ago what has become Heritage Weekend.

In 1954 the first House and Garden Tour was held in Moorefield in June. It continued until 1960 when the debt was paid in full.

The ladies who had spearheaded the effort to pay off the debt rested on their well-earned laurels until 1963 when West Virginia celebrated it's Centennial. That year the festivities spread across the county and the Farm Women's Club started the craft show to both display and sell their wonderful creations.

From the beginning, the purpose of the tour was to raise money for the Hardy County Public Library. The by-laws of today's association, provide that the bulk of the proceeds still go to the Library, but funding has also gone to historic preservations and restoration of such gems as the Old Fields Church and the Mathias Home-

My UNBASED OPINION

By DAVID O. HEISHMAN

A dad-blamed old dreary rainy morning. So many lately and another week's worth of them in the latest forecast. A bunch of Sunday mornings this year I've sat at Big House's front window writing and watching vehicles go up and down the highway with rooster tails of water spray behind them.

I'll be glad when cooler weather finally arrives. Heat. Doghouse is damp. Nothing really noticeably wet, but simply uncomfortable, dead, No life in recliner cushions. No bounce in towels stacked in the cupboard.

Wood heat will be the cure. When old parlor stove fires up, damps will disappear. Nothing like dry wood heat. But there are problems with that too.

I'll snore louder. Nasal passages will dry out at night and I'll Experience and common sense be roaring at the owls and foxes. I have visions of little wild animals pausing in hearing range of Doghouse, heads cocked, ears raised, listening to strange nasal noises emanating from the man den on the creek bank.

Boroleum season. Boroleum, slight Vicks smell, small tubes. I keep one handy everywhere, Doghouse, Big House, Moorefield house and vehicles when heating season arrives. Good stuff to soften nasal passages, keep my nose comfortable, prevent nose bleeds I used to be so susceptible too. I use it liberally. Phoebe gets it somewhere. Keeps me supplied. Great stuff.

Biggest problem with wood heat is wood. Age, infirmities and the dad-blamed weather have limited my wood gathering time this year. Everybody, me included, tells me I have no business being out staggering around in the woods with a power saw and tractor loader. Yes, I'd have a tough time running from a falling dead tree, but the trick is to cut it so it will fall where I ain't. should take care of that happenstance.

But I want to. I'm going to. I'm going to take my time and stack wood racks under Doghouse full again. Cedar for quick crackling heat and oak/maple to keep me are adversities, but they do present warm all night.

I like waking to a dying fire middle of the night. I load up with a couple sticks of cedar, finish filling with oak, leave draft and damper open while I go out to pee. Back inside fire is roaring a little, I shut it down, sit back in recliner, and let popping cedar and burbling creek lull me back to sleep. Heaven.

I've a pretty good pile of wood left over from past years. I always leave a fair supply on higher ground above Doghouse. A really decent flood might clean out my winter wood supply stacked under Doghouse, but I'll still have some handy not far away. High water almost got some this year, but no real problem developed.

At any rate, I'll sort the high pile, fill racks with solid useable sticks and dump rotting on my nearby burn pile. There are a fair number of big chunks, I can split with my tractor mounted splitter. A trailer hitch mounted crane for my ATV, "Tadpole" can lift heaviest chunks to splitter's bed.

Age, arthritis and Parkinson's opportunities. I've always been a bit inventive. I like little challenges of all kinds. I like to dream up little solutions. I think my latest is addition of styrofoam wedges to toilet paper and paper towel rollers in new bathroom to prevent them from unrolling in the blast of air from a shower drying fan.

I think Tadpole's deer hoist is going to be one of my better thoughts. If it is simple to use as it appears then it should lift chunks of wood to my splitter just as well as it lifts a whitetail buck for field dressing. I'm not real interested in the extra venison anymore, but extra split oak is right up my alley. Won't even have to crank the little winch since somebody suggested I use a battery powered drill instead.

My physical adversities signal probable cessation of some of my outdoor activities. Indoors, except for staying on my feet and transitions from chair to shoes, I should be good to go yet a while. I'll work hardest on skills necessary to maintain my stays in Doghouse.

stead. The years when Grant County has participated their library also received some of the funds.

It is important to remember why we have the weekend. First, to support the library and historic restorations. Second, to bring visitors to the county who will spend money for food, lodging, crafts and entertainment, all of which can benefit local organizations, individuals and businesses. Third, to show off our historic homes and buildings and the pride we have in our own history and heritage.

We want to thank all the volunteers who work hard, put in long hours, and give up family time to bring Heritage Weekend to fruition. We've served on these committees at least three different times and we know what it takes. So, our hat is off to you who make Heritage Weekend possible.

Finally, we encourage our readers to take advantage of this opportunity to learn about Hardy County's history. Support the groups and individuals selling food and crafts. And show your pride in the county where you have chosen to live.

Examiner Says

Welcome

Last week we had a letter from Bill Fisher asking about the amount of rainfall received this summer as compared to past years. He lamented not having Sam Vetter to ask about record precipitation. We remember when Sam's mother, Zella, was the South Fork weather observer, as was Mr. Virgil Mathias from Mathias. Both were long time observers and both were regular providers of details for the Examiner each month. The State Farm at Wardensville also kept records. We miss them all and their reports. We do know that Jeff Fraley has maintained weather statistics, but he doesn't send reports to us. Maybe he would know how NOAA or Weather Underground or someplace. We did a search for such things but didn't have any luck in getting historic data. We'll keep trying and hoping there's someone among our readers who can help.

Moorefield High School

We need to keep an eye on this . . the National Park Service has decided to try something a bit different in ridding the Thurmond (that's where John Henry's legend started) area from invasive weeds such as kudzu and Japanese knotweed. They are trying a monthlong intensive grazing by goats. We've always heard that goats will to get the statistics for Bill from eat just about anything, so here's the test. Wouldn't it be wonderful if goats could get rid of these awful plants without having to use chemicals? If it works, we have a natural way to destroy unwanted plants while feeding a herd of goats. Let's hope it works.

Alumni

And after writing this we read in the Grant County Press that kudzu has been found in our neighboring county. So keep an eye out because kudzu is not a plant we want.

And Friends

We had a brain blip last week when watching the coverage of Hurricane Florence. Instead of building a wall to keep people out of the United States, why not build one to keep out hurricane surges and flood waters. Maybe the Corps of Engineers could design such a wall. Maybe one with slats to let out the water already inside. Considering all the money we pour into hurricane clean up and rebuilding, it seems like a reasonable idea. And as for all the folks who have beach homes...well, these storms keep moving the shore line inland and eliminating those cottages so why not just move them back and build them up — way up — so they can see over the wall that's keeping out the storm waters. Just a thought.

Benchmark Indicators

In 2018, the scores were based on one year-end test. In the future, the benchmark indicator will measure progress from the beginning of the year to the end of the year.

Students are assigned a point value based on whether they exceed, meet, partially meet or do not meet standards. The sum of those points are divided by the number of students tested to find overall points. Overall points are divided by 125, the total possible points and that number is the percentage of points used to determine the category.

80 percent or higher = Exceeds Standards

65 - 80 percent = Meets Standards

50 - 65 percent = Partially Meets Standards

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Dear Editor,

My name is Richard W. Slagle, and in no way is this letter a threat. Some rules and regulations at the West Virginia Depart. of Agriculture need to be changed before someone gets hurt or killed. When an agency has a God-like complex, and massive egos much like Hitler and his jack-booted Nazi thugs, that can trespass on your property, kill about $4,500 or $5,000 worth of elk (a mother and her 2 year old son) and then drive off with the bodies, like we used to call rustling of livestock. All of this without a court order. Chronic wasting be damned, because the mother and calf got out of their pens, after a tree fell on the fence and even though they, mother and calf, returned to their pens, they still had to be killed. Now a stream runs into my farms pen that the elk have drank from for years. I guess someone just wanted to see what elk meat tastes like because there was no reason to kill something very special and very beautiful. The son used to like to dance in the duck pond.

I do hope and pray from deep down in the bottom of my heart that everyone involved in the killing of my elk suffer a very violent death. How's that for public relations between an agency and the public?

What happened at (address omitted) was wrong and should be investigated and like I say, in no way is this letter a threat to anyone or anything. But I can pray to God often, as I placed everything in His might hands. Enough said, and I must go.

Richard W. Slagle Wardensville P.S. All my words are true.

simply refuse to pay. McKie said the system would process Homestead Exemptions, exemption requests and approvals, and monthly or quarterly payment plans. Currently that information must be updated every year.

The Accounts Receivable system would also offer payment options such as credit/debit cards, cash, checks and electronic transfers.

Commission President William "JR" Keplinger, who represents the commission on the HCEAA board, said he "sees the benefit of taking people to court that doesn't pay," he balked at approving the system as a whole.

"The problem is, do you understand this?" he asked the board. "Shouldn't we wait until we see if the levy passes before we make a decision? You are agreeing to something you don't understand. I'd like the prosecuting attorney to look at this."

McKie presented the board with a list of functions the system would perform including the following:

- Past Due Accounts Collection • Current Account Management
- Fee Collection Strategy
- •Legal Documentation and
- Tracking
- Reporting Customer Access Portal
- •HCEAA Access Portal
- Integrated website and e-mail
- •General Operation

no money from this," McKie said. "I am hoping to sell this to other counties.'

"It's either legal or not," McKie said.

Advisory Committee

Former members of the HCEAA Board who resigned because of conflicts of interest, met separately to establish an advisory committee.

Dr. Carmen Rexrode, Dave Pratt and George Crump presented an outline of goals, structure and vision for the advisory committee.

"Our goals are to provide the board with monthly updates, reports, concerns, requests and problems from the EMS within Hardy County," Crump said. "We will also disseminate information from the board to all EMS agencies and their personnel."

The committee will meet monthly, the first Wednesday of each month, and encourage all EMS personnel to attend the sessed value meetings. The location will alternate between Moorefield, Baker and Wardensville.

"The framework of the committee will consist of two EMS providers from each agency and two employees of the 911 dispatch center," Crump said.

"The AG's opinion gutted the board of EMS people," Rexrode said. "This is a way to foster cooperation between the agencies. Our the levy. It was sparsely attended. goals are the same - to provide quality EMS for Hardy County." The board approved the forma-

Each ambulance company would be responsible for establishing their own criteria and the squad captains are responsible for submitting letters of recommendation to the HCEAA board for approval.

Anyone interested in EMT training with a scholarship should contact their local EMS squad.

Levy or Fee

Keplinger asked if the HCEAA board was going to provide information to the public regarding the proposed levy.

The Hardy County Commission voted to put an emergency medical services levy on the November ballot.

The levy would collect additional real estate and personal property taxes as follows:

Class I - $0.0469 per $100 of assessed value

Class II - $0.0938 per $100 of as-

Class III - $$0.1876 per $100 of assessed value

Class IV - $0.1876 per $100 of assessed value

Members of the board and county employees are prohibited from lobbying either in favor or against the levy. They can, however, provide factual information.

A public meeting was held in July to provide information about "It was the County Commis-

More than five years ago, Hardy County's Habitat for Humanity purchased two acres of land in Old Fields. They divided it into two one-acre lots and in 2013 finished one house for a family.

Recently, La Shawn Walters signed the deed for her new home, located on the second one-acre lot.

"The best thing about it is the washer and dryer," Walters said. "With two children at home, going to the laundromat was a chore and expensive."

Some of the volunteers who worked on Walters' house included Dave Mathias, Jim Oliver, Tom Oliver, Harold George, Neil Gillies and Will Wheeler. "There's a core group that works pretty con-

To qualify for a Habitat for Humanity home, you must meet income eligibility. You must also be able to afford a small mortgage. Habitat Homes are sold at cost. Archery and Crossbow Seasons Open West Virginia's 2018 archery and crossbow seasons for white-tailed deer, black bear and wild boar will open Saturday, Sept. 29. The archery and crossbow deer and bear seasons run through Dec. 31.

The wild boar archery and crossbow season is a split season, with the first segment also from Sept. 29 to Dec. 31 and an additional late season from Feb. 1 to Feb. 3, 2019. To hunt the February wild boar season, hunters will need a 2019 hunting license.

Bear hunters must buy a Bear Damage Stamp (Class DS) in addition to a base license (nonresidents need a Class EE Bear Hunting License). Two bears may be taken per year, provided at least one bear is taken in Boone, Fayette, Kanawha, Logan, McDowell, Mingo, Nicholas, Preston, Raleigh or Wyoming counties no additional stamps are needed to harvest bears during the archery and crossbow season, except for nonresidents hunting on the National Forest (Class I stamp). The less archery deer before harvestdaily bag limit for bear remains ing a second antlered deer in that one bear per day.

Hunters must buy stamps if they wish to harvest additional deer deer in one day during the archery during the archery and/or crossbow seasons. One or two additional archery deer, depending on the county, may be taken with Class RB (resident) or Class RRB (nonresident) stamps (one deer per stamp). Additional archery stamps must be bought before Sept. 29.

Resident underage and senior hunters must buy a Class RB stamp to take additional archery or crossbow deer, but resident landowners hunting on their own property and Class DT (Life-threatening Condi-

> In 12 counties or portions thereof, hunters must take an antlercounty.

Individuals may take up to two or crossbow seasons. The first deer does not have to be electronically checked before harvesting the second deer in the same day. However, only one antlered deer may be taken in the same day during any season.

For more information on hunting regulations, hunters should consult the 2018-2019 West Virginia Hunting and Trapping Regulations Summary available at DNR offices, license agents, or on the WVDNR website www.wvdnr.gov.

Monitoring Your Earnings Record Can Really Pay Off

By Tony Stutts

Special to Examiner

You work hard for your money. You're saving and planning for a secure retirement. Now you need to make sure you're going to get all the money you deserve. Regularly reviewing your Social Security earnings record can really pay off, especially when every dollar counts in retirement.

If an employer did not properly report just one year of your work earnings to us, your future benefit payments from Social Security could be close to $100 per month less than they should be. Over the course of a lifetime, that could cost you tens of thousands of dollars in retirement or other benefits to

It's ultimately the responsibility of your employers - past and present - to provide accurate earnings information to Social Security so you get credit for the contributions you've made through payroll taxes. But you can inform us of any errors or omissions. You're the only person who can look at your lifetime earnings record and verify that it's complete and correct.

Eastern's New Parking Lot Is Just the Beginning

By Jean A. Flanagan Moorefield Examiner

If you've been to Eastern West Virginia Community and Technical College recently, you probably noticed the construction of an additional parking lot. According to Eastern's President Dr. Charles "Chuck" Terrell, the parking lot is only the beginning of "the Grand Design."

"It all started with Carla Hardy and the parking lot in Moorefield," Terrell said. "When I saw that project, I started asking questions.'

The parking lot currently under construction at Eastern was supposed to be part of the project to add a new wing to the college. The Science and Nursing Wing was completed in September 2015.

"We had to hold off on the parking lot because we didn't have enough money in the project," Terrell said. "After the Moorefield lot was done, I met with Carla and she asked if we could modify the traditional design of the parking lot. Since we're part of the Chesapeake Bay watershed, we could take advantage of some grants from the West Virginia DEP (Department of Environmental Protection) and the West Virginia Conservation Agency for the pavers."

Using specially-designed pavers rather than traditional asphalt is more environmentally friendly. The pavers are porous and allow storm water to soak into the ground under the parking lot, rather than run off into storm drains and ultimately the Potomac River.

In addition to the pavers, the parking lot will feature bio-retention beds consisting of plants instead of concrete curbs.

Further cost savings were realized when Eastern contracted with the Hardy County Division of Highways for some of the construction.

tors suggested we use solar lighting instead of traditional lights in the parking lot," Terrell said. "We just received the bids for solar space." lighting. We'll be looking at those shortly."

Another "non-traditional" feature of the parking lot will be an electric vehicle charging station. "We hope to apply for grants for two charging stations, one on the new lot and one under the solar canopy," Terrell said. Wait - what? Solar canopy? Last year, Mountain View Solar presented a workshop at the college on solar energy and the benefits available to home and business owners. "They told us how we could incorporate solar power here at Eastern," Terrell said.

Thus began plans for a solar canopy. It will be located adjacent to the existing parking lot. Cars can park under the canopy. "We can offer covered parking and at the same time reduce the college's electricity costs," Terrell said.

The additional parking will be necessary to accommodate STREAAM Trail. You've heard the anticipated traffic to the new Business/IT Innovation Center, the Flex Center and the Mountain Skyway Workforce Education, Community Development, Cultural Arts Center.

The Business/IT and Flex Centers are planned as one-story buildings located between the parking lots and the main college building. They are only in the concept stages. But the Mountain Skyway Center is very much on the drawing board.

"Eastern is hosting a roundtable discussion with the USDA Rural Development folks on Sept. 27 to discuss funding options," Terrell said. "We will begin with a feasibility study and engage other agencies, like the Appalachian Regional Commission and the West Virginia Development Office, as partners.

"Our vision is to build an authentic timber-frame barn that will serve multiple purposes," he said. "The first floor will be an "One of the paving contrac- open space configuration to support the arts. The lower level will be Workforce Education and Community Development office the Higher Education Commission was able to give all colleges in the state a small pot of money for their capital projects fund. So Terrell wants to install a patio on the east side of the college.

"The company that provided the pavers for the parking lot told us about Porous Pave, a material made from recycled tires," he said. "We may also qualify for some WV DEP funds for that as well."

Porous Pave is a liquid material made from recycled tires that hardens to a strong, porous surface. It won't crack under extreme heat and cold. It lasts longer than traditional asphalt and it's economical to install.

To tie all of these projects together, Terrell contacted the company that created the Civil War Trails signs. "I like those signs," he said.

"My vision is to create a of STEM - science, technology, engineering and math. Well this is science, technology, reading, engineering, arts, agriculture and math."

Terrell's vision is that Eastern will become a Demonstration Center. Signs around the campus will explain the solar lighting and solar canopy. One will describe the pavers and bio-retention beds and electric vehicle charging station. Another will explain the Barn Quilt, which will be hung as soon as the lawn dries enough that the lift doesn't sink to its axles.

Another will relate the history of the authentic barn timbers in the Mountain Skyway.

"Students can come to the college, follow the STREAAM trail and learn about water conservation, renewable energy, arts in the community and agricultural history," Terrell said.

He hopes to have the parking lot completed before Christmas, the patio and solar canopy done in the Spring.

"I hope to have a Spring dedication for elementary school kids," Terrell said. "Show them all the cool stuff the college has

The Moorefield Yellow Jackets lit up the scoreboard last Friday night against South Harrison High School, 46-7.

"It was a great feeling," commented Moorefield's head coach Matt Altobello. "It is a feeling that these kids have deserved for a long time. The last win for us was against Tucker County in 2016."

THE OLD MASTER By Jay Fisher

By Jay Fisher

The first four years WVU faced Kansas State as members of the Big 12, the Wildcats won (and a couple were ugly losses for the Mountaineers). In 2016, WVU finally figured out KSU, squeaking by with a one point win. Last year, WVU made it two in a row, with a five point win.

Not in 2018. The Wildcats are a bit down, and WVU took advantage. It was not perfect performance by any stretch. The Mountaineers stumbled to a slow start, with turnovers on their first two possessions. But once things got untracked, WVU rolled to a 35-6 win. While Will Grier managed to get his yards (356) and his touchdowns (5), the real star of the game was the defense. The Mountaineers defense kept Kansas State out of the end zone, and only gave up 3 points total after 3 WVU turnovers

West Virginia also had a couple of nice short yardage stops that stymied Kansas State drives. They even recovered a fumble for good measure, to go with four sacks and ten tackles for loss. Again, the defense wasn't perfect, and there were some pass coverage breakdowns in the second half. But the defense played at a pretty high level most of the game, and always seemed to come up big when they needed it.

That's good, because the WVU defense is about to get its biggest test of the year so far by a big margin. The Mountaineers are currently second in the Big 12 in total yards and passing yards per game. Who's first? Texas Tech. The Red Raiders are also first in points per game as well. Tech didn't look good in a season opening loss to Ole Miss, but since then have been very solid. They opened some eyes when freshman QB Alan Bowman threw for over 600 yards against Houston (which is not a bad defense). They REALLY turned heads when they stomped Oklahoma State last week, 41-17. The Cowboys were ranked in the Top 20, and Bowman threw for nearly 400 yards against an OSU defense that had been playing well.

Bowman is the straw that stirs the drink, but he has a lot of big play talent around him. There are four receivers among Big 12 statistical leaders: Antoine Wesley, Ja'Deion High, TJ Vasher, and KeSean Carter. Wesley and Vasher are both tall receivers who can present tough matchups for defensive backs. And against Oklahoma State, the Red Raiders had success running the ball with DeMarcus Felton going for 121 yards. That added dimension will make them even tougher to defend.

Defensively, the Raiders have dangerous in the postseason.

simply a fluke remains to be seen.

This game has the potential to ting touchdowns instead of settling for field goals (and defensively, forcing field goal attempts). I do think WVU has a slightly more potent offense, with too many weapons for Tech to successfully guard.

I also think WVU has a slightly better defense, especially up front.

Notes: Kickoff is at noon, and it will be on ESPN2...WVU is 12th in both major polls this week, and the second Big 12 team, behind

Oklahoma...Texas Tech moved into the AP poll at #25...The women's soccer team had a slow start to the season, and after six games was 1-2-3, and unranked.

Since then, they have rattled off five straight wins, with the last four all shutouts. The most recent two were the most impressive. They travelled to Texas and knocked off two ranked teams. They won at

#22 Texas Tech 2-0, and then beat

#21 TCU by the same 2-0 score.

WVU should start climbing back into the rankings soon, and this could be a sign that they will be

WVU. 49-38.
