

Nikki Moore Is Mooreville's Teacher of the Year

North Madison kindergarten teacher Nikki Moore has been selected as Mooreville's H.O.P.E. (Helping Our Pupils Excel) award winner for the 2013-14 school year. Moore was surprised at school as she and her class got ready to enjoy the all-school talent show. Superintendent David Marcotte took to the microphone to announce the award and Moore's family emerged from behind the stage curtain.

In Moore's nomination for the district award, North Madison Principal Stephanie McGaha said Moore "is an inspiration to all of her students, parents, and peers." McGaha added, "She knows that there is more to inspiring students than academic material. She inspires and promotes a love of experiences for her students as she makes it her mission to offer her students as many opportunities as possible to build a love of learning."

Moore, who has been a teacher with Mooreville Schools for 11 years, was nominated by her fellow teachers at North Madison and selected from among the district's seven building nominees by a group of administrators and representatives of the Community Foundation of Morgan County. Moore will represent Mooreville in the Indiana Teacher of the Year competition this fall. Other building nominees included:

MHS: Joe Johnson

PHMS: Charlene Bische

Newby: Londa Soladine

Northwood: Megan Blain

Waverly: Jill Risinger

Neil Armstrong: Cortnie Query

Photos:

Top: Nikki Moore (center) was surprised was her award announcement by (from left) Assistant Superintendent Randy Taylor, Principal Stephanie McGaha, Director of Curriculum and Instruction Holly Frye, and Superintendent David Marcotte.

Center Right: Moore with her class.

Below Right: Moore is surprised by her family on stage.

