When school remains open during inclement weather, the school corporation recognizes the basic right of parents and guardians to decide whether or not to send their children to school under such conditions. Such absences will be considered unexcused. Parents and students should also recognize that school bus schedules may be delayed because of the weather conditions. In these situations, parental decisions about attendance or tardiness are respected.

I hope this helps everyone understand the process that the Mooresville Schools "decision makers" go through when considering "emergency school closings or delays". It's a decision that takes a great deal of input from a number of parties.
