2011 Louisville Slugger High School All-Americans

TUCSON, Ariz. — Right-handed pitcher Dylan Bundy of Owasso HS (OK) dominated the high school scene this season and is the 2011 Louisville Slugger High School Player of the Year.

Bundy helped lead his team to a No. 1 national ranking for a few weeks in the polls and got them to the Oklahoma 6A state championship game, which he did not pitch and the Rams unfortunately lost.

On the mound, he dominated with an 11-0 record and 0.20 ERA. He only allowed two earned runs all season. Bundy threw 8 shutouts, one no-hitter, 6 one-hitters, 1 two-hitter and 2 three-hitters. He allowed only five walks and struck out 158 batters.

At the plate, the switch-hitting sometimes third baseman batted .467 with 18 doubles, two triples, 11 home runs and 54 RBI. He walked 31 times.

He signed with the University of Texas and was the fourth overall pick in the MLB draft by Baltimore.

Bundy leads a list of some very talented high school players this spring which are featured here in the Louisville Slugger All-American teams. Players were nominated by their high school coaches.

For the 15th year, Louisville Slugger is sponsoring the High School All-American teams. The staff of Collegiate Baseball newspaper selects the team.
