Perry Hall is riding an 11-match win streak.

The Punishers have been on a remarkable run the last several weeks finishing among the top teams at two major tournaments while running their match record to 11-1 on the year.

The team started with a lot of unknown wrestlers and rookies with no idea what kind of success they would have this year, but the team has grown leaps and bounds and improves each and every week. Their only loss this year was the first match of the year against Reisterstown, which they have avenged at two tournaments since.

The team feeds off each other and you can see a dramatic difference through the line-up. They still have room for improvement as always in wrestling but have come a long way since November. Several wrestlers have double digit wins on the year.

The team is led by Quran Carter-Morris with 22 wins and three tournament titles, William Bressner with 21 wins and has placed at three tournaments so far. Captains Camryn Grindle and Tyler Klein both are in double digits and have placed at multiple tournaments. In the heavyweights Josh Benzig, Dondre Ennels, Alec Blume and Dan Andino have placed at all three tournaments this year and all have close to 20 wins. Veterans Sonny Mccauley, Hunter Yoakum, Austin Mccauley, Tyrell Armstrong, and Dylan Shank have shown promise and are on the borderline for tournament success.

There are also a number of rookies that are scoring team points regularly in Tyreek Dickerson, Brendan Hollingsworth, Colin Alexander, Pablo Thompson and Patrick Sidelinger.

Perry Hall will host the MJWL-Championships on March 3.
