Q: Which League should I register for?

A: There are 4 Leagues in the WHL which try to accommodate all levels of play.

Fun League – for players aged 21 and older who prefer to play in safer, slower-paced league that stresses no body contact. This league is ideal for players who are just learning the game of hockey or are working on the basic skills of the game. It's also for players who have played many years and wish to play in a league that is less about winning and more about exercise and camaraderie. The focus is on learning, improving and having fun.

Beer League – for players aged 21 and older who have a good grasp of the basic skills and can now play in a league where they are content with being bumped around by other players while competing to win. Most players in this league should know how to skate, stop, pass, shoot and get up quickly after falling on the ice.

Middle League – for players aged 19 and older with Intermediate and/or Experienced Skills. This league is played at a much faster pace, so players should have a stronger knowledge of the game, better skating and stick handling skills are able to compete at a higher level.

Big League – for players aged 19 and older with Advanced Skills. This is the only league that allows slap shots. Players will have had experience at elite levels of hockey in the past and/or have been coached before. This is the fastest of the 4 leagues in the WHL and by far the most challenging.
