From the Pastor

Markers and milestones are important. As you travel on the interstate you can tell how far you have to go by observing the mile markers. In our lives it's the same way. One of the most significant transitions in our lives is the transition from youth to adulthood. There are many markers that we use to signal where we are in that journey. We get our driver's license at 16. We register to vote at 18 and we are legally an adult at 21. For many people one of the most significant markers is graduation from High School.

Several young people in our congregation are in the process of moving from High School to work, or the military or to college as we speak. It is appropriate that we honor their achievements. By the time you read these words we will have recognized our graduates in our worship service and we will be attending graduation parties. All of the young people whom you know who have passed this mile marker have moved a significant distance in their lives. We who have watched them grow from childhood are amazed at how quickly this time has passed.

This class of graduates is special for me not just because Eric is among them. It is also special because I have watched these young people grow and learn from 1st grade all the way through High School. It's amazing to see how quickly they grow and how they rise to challenges that seem too big for them time after time. Join me in marking this season in their journey. There is a great deal to celebrate, and a great deal to anticipate. It will be a privilege to watch them continue to achieve and continue to grow and to be able to say that we were there when it all began. Congratulations and God bless you.
