2 Corinthians 3:12-13 (14-18), 4:1-6

J.J.- Jesu Juva—Help me, Jesus

2 Corinthians 3:12–4:6 (ESV)

¹² Since we have such a hope, we are very bold, ¹³ not like Moses, who would put a veil over his face so that the Israelites might not gaze at the outcome of what was being brought to an end.

¹⁴ But their minds were hardened. For to this day, when they read the old covenant, that same veil remains unlifted, because only through Christ is it taken away. ¹⁵ Yes, to this day whenever Moses is read a veil lies over their hearts. ¹⁶ But when one turns to the Lord, the veil is removed. ¹⁷ Now the Lord is the Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom. ¹⁸ And we all, with unveiled face, beholding the glory of the Lord, are being transformed into the same image from one degree of glory to another. For this comes from the Lord who is the Spirit.

¹ Therefore, having this ministry by the mercy of God, we do not lose heart. ² But we have renounced disgraceful, underhanded ways. We refuse to practice cunning or to tamper with God's word, but by the open statement of the truth we would commend ourselves to everyone's conscience in the sight of God. ³ And even if our gospel is veiled, it is veiled to those who are perishing. ⁴ In their case the god of this world has blinded the minds of the unbelievers, to keep them from seeing the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God. ⁵ For what we proclaim is not ourselves, but Jesus Christ as Lord, with ourselves as your servants for Jesus' sake. ⁶ For God, who said, "Let light shine out of darkness," has shone in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

Grace, mercy and peace be to you from God our Father and from our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ!

Amen

Remember getting free samples in the grocery store?

It doesn't happen as much as it used to. You see it in Walmart every now and again, if you shop at Sam's or Krogers you might see it. Sometimes it might be a cold cut on a cracker, or a little cup of cereal. Any number of things might be offered.

But it is just a little bit. Just enough to let you to make a decision about the product, but small enough to leave you wanting more. The manufacturers did studies and figured out that 20 percent of the time a sale is made, and sometimes, as many as 90 percent of shoppers purchase the item they tasted.

Car dealers are in on the game too. As soon as you step foot on most car lots, they are right there talking and trying to get you to take a test drive. Again, studies have shown that if the salesman can get you to test-drive the newest model, you'll begin to imagine yourself as the owner.

It's harder to step down to a lower model if you've already driven their best; whether you can really afford it or not.

Today, we celebrate the Transfiguration of Our Lord, and we remember how three of Jesus' disciples were given a glimpse of Christ's unveiled glory.

In today's Epistle, St. Paul will help us understand what truly was taking place at this transfiguration. The lesser men were showing the way and giving way to the greater Man.

Moses and Elijah—the Torah and the Prophets—are just the “free sample” or the “test drive,” but Christ is the real thing!

The “free samples,” or the “test drive,” of the Old Covenant finds its fulfillment in Christ, true Man as well as true God. Jesus is the New Covenant, the real thing.

The Old Testament Torah and Prophets were designed to point to Christ.

They never were never meant to be an end in themselves, but merely to serve Israel until Christ came. Well, that time has come, so here, on the Mount of Transfiguration, whom do we see with Jesus in His unveiled glory but Moses and Elijah—there to point us to Jesus’ “exodus,” His death, for the life of the world.

Leading up to our text, Paul has been comparing the old covenant with the new. He concludes that the old is being brought to an end, for the old covenant cannot save, but leads only to death.

To be sure, the old covenant came with glory also, but it was a “reflected” glory. Paul compares the fading glory of the old covenant to Moses coming down from Mount Sinai (3:7): “The Israelites could not gaze at Moses’ face because of its glory, which was being brought to an end.” So in 3:13, we see that “Moses . . . would put a veil over his face so that the Israelites might not gaze at the outcome of what was being brought to an end.”

That’s teaching us that the Law cannot save us. It can only show us our sin and our need for something more permanent. Our Torah-keeping will never reach the perfection God demands.

In fact, in Galatians 3, Paul reminds us that the Law of Moses had merely a teaching function. The Law was a guardian or teacher instructing Israel on how sins would be truly atoned.

With each animal that was sacrificed, Israel was being taught that without the shedding of blood, there could be no atonement.

Each year, on the Day of Atonement, when the sins of Israel were transferred to the innocent “scapegoat,” Israel would be learning how God would redeem the world, by transferring our sins to another.

With every Passover celebration, Israel would be taught to look to the “Lamb of God,” who would once and for all take away the sins of the world.

That was the old covenant—a glorious truth, but veiled, not fully revealed, and intended to fade away.

Sadly, to this day, many have never seen beyond that old covenant; a veil essentially remains.

Only when the Holy Spirit reveals the truth to us—only as He “calls, gathers, enlightens”—is the veil removed.

Otherwise, the Scriptures remain a closed book, and we miss seeing the one behind the veil: Christ . . . on every page!

Our Gospel, the transfiguration event, follows some other events in which Christ revealed who He is.

Mark 8 relates the miraculous feeding of the four thousand and the healing of a blind man.

We also hear Jesus' question to the disciples: “Who do people say that I am?” Their answers: John the Baptist, Elijah, or one of the other prophets.

In other words, people were equating Jesus with other old covenant figures. Peter, however, was given to recognize Jesus as the Christ. This leads Jesus to predict His crucifixion and death, for that is truly what it means to be the Christ!

But then you know what happened? Peter was unhappy at that word of Jesus' death. He would prevent it.

Even after true confession of Jesus, the veil remains!
Still more to be learned.

And so, Jesus takes Peter, with James and John, up the mountain for a lesson. Paul, and the Corinthians to whom he writes, have true hope in the Gospel.

God had, indeed, chosen them in Christ as He's chosen us—and in time, through His Means of Grace, He's worked it out in our lives.

This makes St. Paul bold to speak of salvation in Christ Jesus, for He wishes to be an instrument by which the Gospel of Christ is proclaimed.

The Lord desires the same for us!
And yet, to this day, a veil remains for many.

Because of our sinful condition, we came into this world turned from God. St. Paul had previously written to these Corinthians that "the natural person does not accept the things of the Spirit of God, for they are folly to him, and he is not able to understand them because they are spiritually discerned" (1 Cor 2:14).

In fact, it's this veil that kept many in Israel from receiving Jesus. St. John reminds us in his Gospel that "he came to his own, and his own people did not receive him. But to all who did receive him, who believed in his name, he gave the right to become children of God, who were born, not of blood nor of the will of the flesh nor of the will of man, but of God” (Jn 1:11–13).

All because of what Peter would have prevented.

Christ did travel on to Jerusalem for the purpose of being “glorified”—glorified by being lifted up on the cross.

And as Christ was lifted up, the old covenant was being fulfilled, and the veil was being lifted. As Jesus draws His dying breath and commends Himself into the hands of the heavenly Father, as Jesus cries out from the cross, the “veil” is not only being lifted, but it is also being torn in two from top to bottom (Mk 15:38)!

“It is finished,”

Some, then, are converted (brought to repentance)—always solely by the grace of God.

The veil is taken away.

We can then see Jesus for who He truly is—our Savior from sin, death, and the power of the Law. In fact, we, by God’s grace, with “unveiled faces,” also begin to reflect the glory of Christ as the Gospel has its way with us.

The Law could never produce such a change, because we cannot keep it perfectly.

The Gospel can, because it’s all about Christ and what He accomplishes for us on the cross!

God continues His transforming - His transfiguring work in us as we continue to hear the Gospel and as we make frequent use of the Sacraments - His Means of Grace.

It is never complete in our lifetime, but only brought to completion at our “exodus.” This is why St. Paul can carry out his apostolic ministry and not lose heart—because it isn’t about Paul, it isn’t about Moses or Elijah, and it isn’t about us and never has been!

It's only about Jesus!

Paul is free, as are we!

Free to use the opportunities God gives to confess Christ, knowing that the results are up to God alone.

St. Paul doesn't have to resort to "disgraceful, underhanded ways" (4:2).

He doesn't have to resort to deception.

He doesn't have to sugarcoat the Word of God to make it more palatable.

There were certainly those in Paul's day who were doing so, just as there are in ours.

We simply confess Christ when and where God gives opportunity.

If the message is received in grateful hearts, to God be the glory!

If it's rejected, and at times it will be, it's only because "the god of this world has blinded the minds of the unbelievers, to keep them from seeing the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God" (4:4).

We don't lose heart, because the result isn't our responsibility.

That always rests solely with God.

We baptized believers, those for whom the Holy Spirit has lifted the veil, can be bold confessors of the new covenant, Christ—"the excellencies of him who called you out of darkness into his marvelous light" (1 Pet 2:9).

Amen.

The peace of God which passes all understanding, keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.

Amen.

Soli Deo Gloria – To God alone be the glory

Sermon Outline

The Old Covenant Finds Its Fulfillment in Christ

2 Corinthians 3:12-13, 4:1-6

1. The old covenant is fading away.
2. A “veil” prevents many from seeing the glory of the new covenant.
3. By the working of the Holy Spirit, the veil is lifted in Christ.
