J.J.- Jesu Juva—Help me, Jesus

Acts 10:34–43 (ESV)

Gentiles Hear the Good News

³⁴ So Peter opened his mouth and said: “Truly I understand that God shows no partiality, ³⁵ but in every nation anyone who fears him and does what is right is acceptable to him. ³⁶ As for the word that he sent to Israel, preaching good news of peace through Jesus Christ (he is Lord of all), ³⁷ you yourselves know what happened throughout all Judea, beginning from Galilee after the baptism that John proclaimed: ³⁸ how God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and with power. He went about doing good and healing all who were oppressed by the devil, for God was with him. ³⁹ And we are witnesses of all that he did both in the country of the Jews and in Jerusalem. They put him to death by hanging him on a tree, ⁴⁰ but God raised him on the third day and made him to appear, ⁴¹ not to all the people but to us who had been chosen by God as witnesses, who ate and drank with him after he rose from the dead. ⁴² And he commanded us to preach to the people and to testify that he is the one appointed by God to be judge of the living and the dead. ⁴³ To him all the prophets bear witness that everyone who believes in him receives forgiveness of sins through his name.”

Colossians 3:1–4 (ESV)

Put On the New Self

3 If then you have been raised with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is, seated at the right hand of God. ² Set your minds on things that are above, not on things that are on earth. ³ For you have died, and your life is hidden with Christ in God. ⁴ When Christ who is your life appears, then you also will appear with him in glory.

Matthew 28:1–10 (ESV)

The Resurrection

28 Now after the Sabbath, toward the dawn of the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary went to see the tomb. ² And behold, there was a great earthquake, for an angel of the Lord descended from heaven and came and rolled back the stone and sat on it. ³ His appearance was like lightning, and his clothing white as snow. ⁴ And for fear of him the guards trembled and became like dead men. ⁵ But the angel said to the women, “Do not be afraid, for I know that you seek Jesus who was crucified. ⁶ He is not here, for he has risen, as he said. Come, see the place where he lay. ⁷ Then go quickly and tell his disciples that he has risen from the dead, and behold, he is going before you to Galilee; there you will see him. See, I have told you.” ⁸ So they departed quickly from the tomb with fear and great joy, and ran to tell his disciples. ⁹ And behold, Jesus met them and said, “Greetings!” And they came up and took hold of his feet and worshiped him. ¹⁰ Then Jesus said to them, “Do not be afraid; go and tell my brothers to go to Galilee, and there they will see me.”

Grace, Mercy, and Peace be to you from God our Father and from our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ!

Amen.

When Jesus died on the cross, all looked like it was lost. For the disciples who had believed in Him, all hopes were gone. To the mortal eye, it looked as if God had lost and the devil had won. There hung the world's great Redeemer—dead, defeated, and humiliated.

If the story had ended there, then we would be a pitiable bunch of people, wouldn't we? Two thousand years of Baptisms, confirmations, sermons, Communions, and ordinations into the pastoral office would mean absolutely nothing. And worst of all, we would all still be dead in our trespasses and sins. You would have no hope of eternal life. Death would hold just as much terror for you as it did for everyone else.

But...Christ is Risen! Christ is risen indeed! Alleluia!

Opponents of traditional Christianity know how essential this piece of the puzzle is. They know that without the resurrection of Christ, the whole Christian house of cards falls down. And that is why they do everything possible to call into question the truthfulness of this event.

They do whatever they can to put Jesus back in that tomb, to say it was all a lie invented by later followers of Jesus to preserve His memory.

Today we rejoice that this is not where the story ended. We know Christ is Risen! _____ That age-old enemy death had done its worst on Calvary. It had its way with the Son of God. It sank its dreadful teeth into the author of life. But its victory was short-lived. Death's dominion over the souls of men was brought to an end on the first day of the week, when early in the morning our Lord Jesus rose from the dead.

This is where we find the two Marys in the Holy Gospel today. Mark's Gospel tells us that these two women had gone to the tomb of Jesus early in the morning on the first day of the week to anoint the body of Jesus with spices.

Matthew picks it up at the point where they come to the tomb and explains how the stone had been rolled away from the tomb: “And behold, there was a great earthquake, for an angel of the Lord descended from heaven and came and rolled back the stone and sat on it” (Matthew 28:2).

The women, still in shock from the events of Good Friday, are now faced with the sight of a glorious angel, whose appearance was like lightning and whose clothing was white as snow. The guards are frightened half to death, but the angel says to the women: “Do not be afraid, for I know that you seek Jesus who was crucified” (28:5).

And then come those simple, yet joyously beautiful words: “He is not here, for He has risen, as He said. Come, see the place where He lay” (28:6).

All was not lost! Death did not have the last word!

Their faith was not in vain; for Christ is Risen! Christ is Risen indeed! Alleluia! The humiliation and death of the Son of God was part of God’s plan to reconcile sinful men to Himself. It was necessary that the Christ should suffer, be crucified, and be raised again on the third day. Over and over Jesus had told His disciples these words, trying to prepare them for what was coming. But it was not until He rose from the dead and appeared to them alive that they finally believed.

Good Friday was God’s answer to sin. It was about God making restitution for our sins for us, by punishing them in His Son.

Easter is God’s answer to death. Easter is about God proving to the world that He had accepted the sacrifice of His Son as payment.

Together, Good Friday and Easter mean that your sins are forgiven in Christ and that through Him you now have the victory over death and the grave.

And what better way to celebrate God’s victory over sin and death than to have a feast? What better way to celebrate the Lord’s triumph over the grave than to dine at His holy Table? Indeed, the Lord is good. Christ is risen! He is Risen indeed, Alleluia!

He is not in the grave, but here, with us this morning in the salutary gift of the Lord's Supper.

The prophet Isaiah foretold God's victory over sin and death, as well as a celebratory feast that God Himself would prepare: "On this mountain the Lord of hosts will make for all peoples a feast of rich food, a feast of well-aged wine, of rich food full of marrow, of aged wine well refined. And He will swallow up on this mountain the covering that is cast over all peoples, the veil that is spread over all nations. He will swallow up death forever; and the Lord God will wipe away tears from all faces, and the reproach of His people He will take away from all the earth, for the Lord has spoken" (Isaiah 25:6–8).

God kept His promises and destroyed our greatest enemy of all in the death and resurrection of His Son. And in His rich grace, He has also given to us a feast of "rich food" in the Supper of His Son's body and blood.

For what can be richer, what can be more satisfying than the very bread of heaven Himself?

In this feast of victory, it is no imagined Jesus that we dine with.

It is no mere symbol of a far distant Savior.

It is the risen Christ Himself who steps into our midst and feeds us with His crucified and risen flesh and blood for the forgiveness of our sins, life, and salvation.

What a marvelous antidote this is to our fear of death and judgment!

What glorious comfort there is for Christians on this day.

Not only do we hear the news that our Lord has defeated death, we also get to celebrate that victory by feasting on His body and blood.

Is it any wonder, therefore, that from the very beginning the Christian Church gathered on Sunday to hear the teaching of the apostles and to break bread?

After all, this is the day that God put the breath of life back into His Son for us and for our salvation.

This is the day that Christ appeared to Peter and the other disciples who had been chosen by God as witnesses, "who ate and drank with Him after He rose from the dead" (Acts 10:41).

One can easily see why Easter is the chief festival of the Church Year, and why every Sunday is a mini-celebration of that first Easter.

On the one hand, this validates and gives meaning to everything that our Lord said and did during His earthly ministry. Now there can be no doubt that His words were true.

Now there can be no doubt that He was the Son of God. Nor can there be any doubt that God has forgiven all our sins.

On the other hand, the same could be said of the Church and the works done within her. If Christ is risen, _____ then our faith is not in vain.

There can be no doubt that Baptism truly is a washing away of sins.

There can be no doubt or uncertainty that Holy Communion is truly a life-giving feast of forgiveness.

There can be no doubt that the Absolution spoken in the name of the triune God is truly the word of the risen Christ sounding forth from the lips of His called servants to comfort frightened sinners.

That is perhaps the best part of Christ's triumphant resurrection—all doubts flee. All uncertainty about God, about His attitude toward us, about the extent of His love, or about the truthfulness of His promises must depart.

And for anyone who has borne heavy crosses, for anyone who has thought in moments of difficulty that God had forgotten them, or that their faith was in vain, or that their lives were utterly futile, no news is more welcome. If we are facing death or severe illness, if we have lost wives or husbands, parents or children, if we have suffered ridicule or mockery for the sake of Christ, we do not need to despair.

For Christ is Risen! Christ is risen indeed.

He won the victory over death.

Crosses must be borne, but today we rejoice that death did not have the last word for Jesus, nor does it for you. And we give thanks to God for preparing for us a feast of victory in the salutary gift of the Lord's Supper.

Amen.

The peace of God, which passes all understanding, keep your hearts and mind through Christ Jesus!

Amen.
