J.J.- Jesu Juva—Help me, Jesus

John 1:43–49 (ESV)

⁴³ The next day Jesus decided to go to Galilee. He found Philip and said to him, “Follow me.” ⁴⁴ Now Philip was from Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter. ⁴⁵ Philip found Nathanael and said to him, “We have found him of whom Moses in the Law and also the prophets wrote, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph.” ⁴⁶ Nathanael said to him, “Can anything good come out of Nazareth?” Philip said to him, “Come and see.” ⁴⁷ Jesus saw Nathanael coming toward him and said of him, “Behold, an Israelite indeed, in whom there is no deceit!” ⁴⁸ Nathanael said to him, “How do you know me?” Jesus answered him, “Before Philip called you, when you were under the fig tree, I saw you.” ⁴⁹ Nathanael answered him, “Rabbi, you are the Son of God! You are the King of Israel!”

Grace, mercy and peace be to you from God our Father and from our Lord and Savior,
Jesus Christ!

Amen.

Have you ever been surprised?

Surprises can be quite pleasant, even downright fun!

After a romantic stroll in the park, a man gets down on his knee, pulls out a beautiful ring, and asks his high school sweetheart, "Would you marry me?"

A young wife eagerly shares big news with her unsuspecting husband: "Guess what? We are having a baby!"

Surprises can also be unpleasant. Unexpected rain pours down on your much anticipated wedding day. An application is made with the applicant just sure he is going to get the job and then finds out someone else was hired. News of the sudden death of a loved one crushes us.

All surprises are, by definition, unexpected.

But not all surprises are received in the same way. People can have widely different reactions to the same surprise. The results of the latest presidential election are in. Some celebrate. Others are upset. Think of movie or restaurant reviews on the Internet. One person's favorite film or café is another's worst entertainment or dining experience.

Perhaps you have heard someone describe to you an artist's new style or her latest song by saying, "People either like it or hate it." Same surprise. Different responses.

This is exactly what we see when Philip and Nathaniel both see and hear of Jesus for the first time. Through His only Son, God revealed His greatest surprise for a world in darkness: Jesus Christ, the Light of the World, has come from above to dispel the darkness. Yet we have two entirely different reactions to this news.

After calling Andrew and his brother, Simon Peter, Jesus found Philip and called him to be His disciple too, saying, "Follow me!" After spending time with Jesus, Philip learned the basics about this man from Galilee and shared the good news about Him with Nathanael.

We sense excitement in Philip's words: "We have found him of whom Moses in the Law and also the prophets wrote, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph!"

Philip speaks as if he had found an invaluable treasure and he must tell everyone about it. He receives the news with a joyful heart. Philip sees Jesus through the eyes of the Holy Spirit, the eyes of faith. He has literally seen the Light!

What about Nathanael? Through the mouth of Philip, Nathanael hears of Jesus for the first time. But his reaction is entirely different from Philip's. We see no excitement upon Nathanael's hearing of the good news, but rather a sense of suspicion about the Galilean Jesus: "Can anything good come out of Nazareth?"

Nathanael's is not a joyful attitude, but a guarded one. Unlike Philip, Nathanael sees Jesus through the eyes of sinful flesh, somewhere between disbelief and unbelief.

He is literally in the dark! The Light has yet to overcome it.

The question remains: Can anything good come out of Nazareth?

The odds seem to be against it, at least in Nathanael's mind. The northern province of Galilee is a land too close to unclean Gentiles and too far from holy Jerusalem in the southern province of Judea. No self-respecting Judean Israelite would look for the Son of God, the King of Israel, in such an unexpected place as Galilee of the Gentiles. The Galilean Jews speak with strange accents and are known for not really following the Jewish laws.

So why would anyone look for God's Messiah in Galilee?

It makes no sense! Is not the great city of Jerusalem! Can God truly work out His salvation from an unlikely place such as Nazareth in Galilee, and among such unlikely folks as Galileans?

God surprises us. We often look for power and wisdom in the wrong place. Yet it is in Jesus of Nazareth, the unassuming man from Galilee, that we are called to see the power and the wisdom of God at work in our lives. We are called to fix our eyes not on ourselves, but on Jesus. Not on our holiness, but on Jesus' holiness.

We are reminded that we are not the light. Jesus is the Light of the World.

To the surprised, to the cautious, to those in disbelief or doubt and seeking answers, Jesus appears and invites them to fellowship with Him: "Come and see."

Jesus extends the same invitation to Nathanael as He did to Peter and Phillip and all the other disciples. But this time, Jesus speaks His words of invitation through Philip, whom He had just called to follow Him. Nathanael's infamous words, "Can anything good come out Nazareth?" are met with Philip's call to meet Jesus: "Come and see!"

Any lingering questions and doubts Nathanael may have had about the man from Galilee eventually come to an end when Jesus Himself appears to him and, to Nathanael's surprise, tells him exactly where he was before Philip called him, ("I saw you under the fig tree").

Suddenly, the light came on for Nathanael! The light of Christ overcame the darkness of Nathanael's heart. Nathanael had now seen the Light. Nathanael's infamous words are now replaced by his confession of faith: "Rabbi, you are the Son of God! You are the King of Israel!" Apparently, good things do come out Nazareth in Galilee.

Not only does God work out His salvation, but reveals the Light of the world, from a most unexpected place. Out of Galilee, through the man from Galilee.

In addition to this surprising state of affairs, God also chooses to bring the light of His Son to the most unlikely folks—to Galileans themselves—and through them invites others to partake of the fullness of life in His kingdom. Andrew, Simon Peter, and Philip are from Bethsaida in Galilee. Nathanael is from Cana in Galilee. And the list goes on.

A Galilean Savior with His Galilean disciples. How shocking! How surprising! A people too close to the Gentiles. A people with too strange an accent. A people cut with a different cultural cloth than their southern counterparts. Yet it is out of odd and lowly Galilee that the risen Jesus, the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world, sends out His Galilean disciples to bring the world God so loved into the Light, to bring a wayward, erring, and dying world to the One who is the Way, the Truth, and the Life.

Who are the Galileans of our day? Who are the people in our neighborhoods who look and speak differently from us, whose cultural ways confound us? Who are those strange folks from different tribes, languages, and nations in our midst?

Which ones do we think from our narrow human perspective, are the ones least likely to benefit from God's surprising news of salvation in Christ?

Who do we think, due to our close-minded sinful ways, are the neighbors least likely to receive God's gracious invitation into the life-giving kingdom of His Son?

You see, we too can be like Nathanael, doubtful about what God can do on behalf of and with neighbors in strange and seemingly useless areas like Galilee.

Are we overly cautious optimistic about strangers coming into our church? Are we worried about inviting modern-day Galileans to be disciples of Jesus with us for the sake of the world.

When we think in these ways, we are in the dark, thinking just as the devil wants us to think. We only see with the eyes of the flesh. We sin, and we close our hearts to the surprisingly gracious ways in which God reveals His great love for new neighbors near and far through His Son.

Yet God is merciful, and He surprises us again and again, inviting us to see with the eyes of the Holy Spirit what mighty deeds He can do in the most unlikely places and among the most unlikely characters. He calls us once again to see the Light, wherever He shines, even in Galilee and among Galileans!

When we ask ourselves, like Nathanael, "Can anything good come out of .. You fill in the blank!" When we think or say things like this, Jesus gently sends us a Philip who invites us on His behalf to "come and see" that the Lord can do great things in and out of whatever place we call a lowly Galilee.

Through Philip, we are called anew to “come and see” that the love of God in Christ Jesus knows no ethnic, racial, linguistic, tribal, or geographic boundaries.

What is the church but a beautiful fellowship of Galileans? A marginal people called out of darkness into the light of the Son. A people once dead raised to new life through faith in God’s Son.

Through the strangers in our midst, God reminds us that the church is a bunch of strangers in a foreign land. We live in the world, but we are not of the world.

To the world, we are complete strangers, speaking with a strange accent and walking to a strange beat. We speak the ancient language of Holy Scripture. We initiate people into the church by sprinkling them with water at our fonts.

We eat the body and drink the blood of God’s Son at our altars.

Our pastors forgive us our sins. We even love our enemies.

And we sing and dance to the tune of strange-sounding hymns, canticles, and songs to worship our Galilean Lord and God. How odd! How surprising! We, too, are strange Galileans.

On this LWML Sunday, we rejoice in Jesus’ calling and invitation to come and see once again what He has graciously done in our lives, His great deeds of salvation on behalf of Galileans like us. Today, we also receive with great thanksgiving and awesome wonder Jesus’ surprising invitation to come and see what He can do and is indeed doing even among strange Galilean neighbors in our midst to extend His kingdom throughout the world. We also ask the Lord Jesus to open our eyes to His surprising opportunities for partnership with brothers and sisters in Christ from different ethnic and language groups in the United States and abroad, so that together we might invite even more neighbors to meet Jesus, the man from Galilee, our Light and Life.

Can anything good really come out of Nazareth in Galilee? Yes indeed, it did!

Jesus, God's greatest gift to us, has come out of lowly Galilee for us and for our salvation. Good things do come out of Galilee!

Can God work out His salvation in lowly places and among strangers today? Yes indeed, He had. "Come and see!"

Amen.

The peace of God, which passes all understanding, keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.

Amen.
