Dear Friends and Friends I have not yet met,

Psalm 24 has always taken a back seat to its neighbor, Psalm 23. For many the 23rd Psalm is the end all and be all of the entire book and granted it is a beautiful piece of poetry that sends a message of welcome from the shepherd we all so desperately long to follow. But, Psalm 24 helps us welcome that same shepherd into our hearts. "Lift up your heads, O gates! And be lifted up, O ancient doors! That the king of glory may come in."

Though Psalm 24 was used as an entry procession for the Arc of the Covenant as it entered Jerusalem, I like to think of it as God's procession into our hearts once God has conquered our stubbornness and our hearts become open to God. Once our hearts are open, we will share some of the characteristics called for in verses 3 through 6. Clean hands and pure hearts, those who do not rise to what is false or swear deceitfully. Those are the kind of people with whom God wants to rub elbows.

It's a mutual thing, God welcomes those who welcome God.

Lift up the gates of your heart!

Blessings, PJ

Leader: O Lord, this earth is yours in all its fullness, this earth and all who dwell therein.

People: Therefore grant to us the fullness of faith, that we might invest one another with trust.

Leader: O Lord, this earth is yours in all its fullness, this earth and all who dwell therein.

People: Breathe to us the full utterance of your word, that we might address one another with understanding.

Leader: O Lord, this earth is yours in all its fullness, this earth and all who dwell therein.

People: Bring us to the full knowledge of your salvation, that we might liberate one another with truth.

Leader: O Lord, this earth is yours in all its fullness, this earth and all who dwell therein.

People: Arouse in us the full earnestness of your power, that we might uphold one another with strength.

Leader: O Lord, this earth is yours in all its fullness, this earth and all who dwell therein.

People: Surround us with the fullness of your love, that we might embrace one another with compassion. Amen.
