Dear Friends and Friends I have not yet met,

Today we celebrate those who gave some or all of their lives to keep us safe, to give us liberty, and to allow us to have rights as citizens of this country and of the world. Thank you to all who have served, are serving, and are willing to serve if needed.

My prayer has always been that war would cease and all might know a life of peace. When I was looking for scripture for this Sunday, I looked at many and finally settled on the Beatitudes from Matthew as they hold for me a richness that can relate to most people and especially those who have witnessed the ugliness of war and its residue. I tried to put myself in the place of those who wake up each morning to mortar fire and fear, those who have lost loved ones in the tragedy of fighting, those who are so afraid for their families, and those who strive to bring peace to a people who have forgotten what peace looks like. But as hard as I try, I cannot. I have lived a privileged life and I know it. But I will always be grateful for those who served, those who did not come home and those who did in a much different way.

Today we celebrate all those who gave some or all of their lives for us, including the one who gave his life so that we might find peace within our own hearts and a passion to bring peace to others, Christ Jesus our Lord.

Blessings, PJ
