

"... yet for us there is but one God, the Father, from whom all things came and for whom we live; and there is but one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom all things came and through whom we live." 1st Corinthians 8:6

It could easily be the modern Norman Rockwell painting: A family visiting home for the holiday and battery chargers plugged into every available power outlet. There is every size and kind of phone that you can imagine, fingers pushing keys, and much more talking than listening.

Many electronic devices, but one power source. I take electricity for granted; I expect it to be there and if it isn't, life is upset. It is invisible, powerful, and meets so many needs; but it is the gadgets that get our attention.

Christians are like that, we all are so different, yet we need and share the same life and power source. God is invisible and far too often taken for granted. We just assume He will always be there to keep life's batteries charged and our gadgets going. Let us not sin by presuming on the mercies of God. Life is to be lived with a thankful awareness that our strength comes from the Lord.
