

In my life there is a drain of my passion. Sometimes it is the business of trying to meet everybody's needs. The basic problem is that I have the "God Syndrome". The "God Syndrome" is, I want to be every place at once with all wisdom and all power. Only God can do that. Indeed, I am trying to be like God in ways that I cannot be. This syndrome causes me to forget one word: "no". I try to do too much of the good things in life and neglect the important. There are times that the best is robbed by the good. The Holy Spirit has tried to help me learn to say no by using leaders in the church, my kids and especially my wife. Most of the time, when I say no to good projects, it is when I am exhausted, discouraged and most of all I have lost my passion. It is those moments I realize that I have neglected my relationship with Christ. I tend to forget to express thanksgiving to God for all he has done because my passion has been drained out.

Something is changing in me. I am not satisfied with the good any longer. I want God's best. So if I say no to some projects please don't take it personal. I am not trying to discourage you. I am trying to maintain my passion with the Lord Jesus Christ.

Keep looking up,
Dan

HEART MEDICINE

PROVERBS 17:22

Teacher: "Mrs. Baker, I've called you today to discuss Brooke's appearance."
Mrs. Baker: "Why? What is wrong with her appearance?"
Teacher: "She hasn't made one in my classroom since September!"

Mother: "Troy, I've been calling you for the last five minutes! Didn't you hear me?"
Troy: "No, I didn't hear you until the fourth time you called."

It was only her second date with a diehard baseball fan, and Judy was a little nervous. It was her fault they arrived at the ballpark a full hour after the game had started. Taking her seat, Judy glanced up at the scoreboard. It was a tight pitcher's battle, bottom of the fifth, 0-0. "Look, Charlie," she exclaimed with relief, "we haven't missed a thing!"
