

“Guns, Guns, Guns”

I was just thinking...

Guns. Guns. Guns. So much in the news about guns and gun control. I have a few guns but I have not fired one in over twenty-five years. I can see both sides of the equation and have compassion for both sides of the debate. The fact of the matter is that taking guns away will not stop senseless killings. In the beginnings of creation there were four individuals on the earth and one brother killed the other brother. There were no guns then but murder was still committed.

The root cause of the violent spirit that is in our day is the fact that we kill over three thousand babies a day in the wombs of their mothers and no one hears the cries of the defenseless. This has gone on for over thirty years. Spiritually this sets the tone of a nation when it comes to being sensitive to another person's life. Now, in this day, no one respects life and we shake our heads and try to understand why. It is very simple to understand. Stop the killing of the innocents. Stop the murder of the unborn. Quit ignoring it and call it what it is: murdering the innocents, the downfall of a once mighty nation.

We can take all the guns away but the violence will never stop. Mankind will continue to see greater murderous acts due to our ignorance and desensitization to the cries of the innocent.

I was just thinking...