

“NOT ABOVE, BUT UNDER”

There have been people who have been enslaved by one form of government or another since mans earliest history.

There have always been a group of men ready to impose their will upon others. Sometimes in the belief, right or wrong, that they knew what was best for themselves and their fellow men.

When they were right, their imposed will could be a blessing, lifting others out of lives of poverty, disease, and despair. When men desire to rule over others with right motives much good can be accomplished.

Life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Our founding fathers came from a religiously repressive environment. These were men of different religious outlooks. But they had a burning desire to live where they were free to worship God as they saw fit. Many of our most important documents are framed around their love of God...One nation under God...indivisible, with liberty and justice for all. One nation, under God. Not above, not even alongside. But under.
